J. L. BOYES,

HOW TO KILL A CHURCH.

Many timely hints have been offered as to a method or system whereby church and church work may be aided but here are a few whose authorship is credited to a minister telling how the reverse may be accomplished:

Don't sing.
Don't come.
Never encourage your pastor.
Don't attend prayer meeting.
Never submit to the majority.
Never bring nor invite anyone.
Discourage all benevolent work.
Let your pastor do all the work.
If you have no strife stir up one.
Never give anything to your church.
Accept committee work, but don't do it.
Never pray for your pastor or church.
Don't come to Sunday school it is for children.

Be sure that the pastors salary is always behind.

Come to divine service not to worship but to find fault.

Oppose bitterly anything that your church never had before.

Make a pastor visit you once a week to correct an imaginary wrong or neglect.

Don't tell your pastor that his last sermon on inspired you, it might make him vain.

If some show a willingness to work and pray and pay, accuse them of selfish motives.

Tell your pastor's faults to others, particularly to those who are about to unite with your church.

Never give the hymn book to the visitor nor shake hands, nor welcome him; he might come again.

Must Have Had Experience.

"Never mind, dear," he said reassuringly as she raised her sweet face from his shoulder and they both saw the white blue on his coat. "It will all

During the Wallpaper season just closing we have sold more paper, and paper of a higher grade than during any previous season. We are making arrangements for a larger and better trade next season than ever, and with this end in view we want to dispose of every roll of paper now on hand.

In order to accomplish this end

we propose clearing out our present stock at Sacrifice Prices

Any REMNANT we may have must go to make room for the new goods which will begin to arrive about September 1st. If you want a Wallpaper NOW, or if you will want one THIS FALL, it will pay you to call while our stock lasts.

Funerals in Peru.
According to social usage, women in Peru cannot attend funerals, and they do not appear at weddings unless they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse drawn by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their desire for display. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot, with a line of empty carriages behind them. As long as they are in the presence of the dead it is considered a proper and necessary evidence of respect to walk. After the body has been committed to the grave these who attend the funeral are brought home in carriages.

MARYSVILLE.
Much sympathy is expressed at Marysville and surrounding country for Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Meagher in the loss of their eldest son, Michael James, whose death from tuberculosis occurred at the home of his uncle, D. Sheehan, Westbrooke, where he went in the hope that a change would restore him to his former health. But despite the best medical treatment he passed peacefully away on Saturday afternoon. Until a short time ago he had been a strong and active lad, the life of his home, and by his kindly disposition and generous nature won for himself many friends, especially among the aged, to whom he delighted to extend a helping hand or give a cheery word or kindly smile. His untimely death, at the early age of twenty-seven years has cast a shadow over the faces of all who knew him.

His mother, who has been a constant attendant at his bedside the past two weeks, and his uncle, D. Sheehan, accompanied the remains to Marysville and on Monday at ten o'clock the funeral took place at St. Mary's church, Marysville. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Michael Meagher, and was attended by an immense throng of people of all classes and creeds, the sacred edifice being crowded to the door. The Brotherhood of B. of L. F. E., of which deceased was a member, attended the funeral and about forty of the members preceded the hearse on foot a distance of miles and carried two beautiful floral wreaths, one from the B. of L. F. E. and one from Miss Marshall, Belleville. The following acted as pall-bearers: Messrs. James Topping, Alexander Campbell, Robert Acton, Patrick Lynch, Vincent Lynch and George Cornish. Deceased leaves to mourn his death besides his father and mother, one sister, Mrs. J. B. Scanlin, of Moor Lake, and two brothers, John and Frank, at home.

might come again.
Must Have Had Experience.
"Never mind, dear," he said reassuringly as she raised her sweet face from his shoulder and they both saw the white blur on his coat; "it will all brush off."
"Oh, Charlie," she burst out, sobbing, hiding her face again upon his white shoulder, "how do you know?"

The Star Arcturus.
It is probable that the star Arcturus is one of the six greatest of all the stars in the sky. Notwithstanding its brightness, it is so far away from us that it is not displaced in position in the slightest measurable degree, as we change our position 186,000,000 miles in our annual journey around the sun. Could we be placed midway between Arcturus and our sun we would receive thousands of times more light and heat from the star than from our sun, and this notwithstanding that the star's radiation is smothered by a dense blanket of metallic vapors. In spite of its immense distance the star is drifting slowly in a southwestward direction over the face of the sky, its motion changing its apparent position by an amount equal to the diameter of the moon in the course of about 1,000 years. So great an apparent motion must indicate an enormous velocity in space.

Peppermint and Tobacco.
If you have a boy who has begun smoking too early and whom you wish to cure of the habit, feed him peppermints. Dr. O. Clayton Jones of Silverton, England, writing in the London Lancet, is authority for this simple cure. Dr. Jones writes: "To break the smoking habit in a youth there is nothing better than peppermint drops. He cannot smoke with a 'bullseye' in his mouth, and even for some time after it is dissolved tobacco will not blend kindly with the taste that remains. Socially the cure may seem worse than the disease, but from a medical point of view the sucking of peppermints is far less hurtful. A common 'bullseye' will prevent smoking for nearly an hour, so the amount of sweets used need not be great."

His Discharge.
A touching instance of the humor which never deserts a true Irishman even in his worst troubles is recorded. A soldier was seen in the trenches holding his hands above the earthworks. His captain asked: "What are you doing that for, Pat?" He replied, with a grin, as he worked his fingers: "I'm feeling for a furlough, sir." Just then a rifle ball struck his arm just below the wrist. Then a queer expression of pain and humor passed over his face as he exclaimed: "And faith it's a discharge!"—London Answers.

So There Is.
"I didn't know you intended to move."
"We don't."
"But your wife told me she was out looking at houses all day yesterday."
"Well, that's true enough, but don't you know there is a vast difference between looking 'at' houses and looking 'for' houses?"

Not Very Consoling.

AUGUST BUSY MAN'S.

Appropriately prepared for holiday reading, and possessing a nice balance between the gay and the serious, the August number of Busy Man's Magazine will be found both seasonable and appetizing. It is full of good things from cover to cover. A graphic character sketch of Sir William Macdonald and what this well-known Canadian millionaire philanthropist is doing for practical education, will be read with interest, as well as other contributions including "The Inside vs. the Outside Man," "The Importance of Secondary Education," and "Fitting Young People for Life's Battles." Among the selections from the leading magazines of the world are the following bright and comprehensive contributions: "Great Achievements of Men Over Sixty," "My Voyage in the World's Greatest Airship," "King Edward Entirely Out of Debt," "Why Some Women Never Marry," "Business Man is Country's Best Citizen," "The Most Exclusive Club in the World," "No Sport to Equal Mountaineering," etc. There is also a generous installment of bright, readable stories in the August issue of Busy Man's, which is admirably illustrated and presents an exceptionally attractive appearance.

GONE FOREVER!

Six years ago, in Weber county, Utah, a farmer put his initials on a dollar bill. Next day he went to Ogden and spent it with a merchant. Before six months had passed he got the same dollar back. Four times in three years the bill came back to him for produce, and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he saw the bill was three years ago. He sent it to a mail order house. He will never see that bill again. The dollar bill will never pay any more taxes for him, will never build or brighten any more homes in the community. He sent it entirely out of the usefulness to himself and his neighbors when he sent it to the mail-order house. The moral is plain. Trade at your home store, where your dollar buys most anything, and where you may get it back again and "boost your own town."

Ten Years of Rheumatic Torture Had Sapped all Joy from Life, but South American Rheumatic Cure Proved the Life Nectar.

"For over ten years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism. I tried many remedies and was under treatment of best medical men, but nothing gave me any hope of a cure. I procured a bottle of South American Rheumatic Cure. Its effects on me were truly wonderful, for when I had taken but one bottle every pain and symptom of rheumatism had left me. I heartily recommend it."—W. J. Sherman, Morrisburg, Ont. (32)

Although the course over which Friday's Marathon was run was not as rough or as hilly as the course in Greece, Sherring's record was not equalled despite the fact that the best runners in the world competed. In Greece Sherring ran the last twelve miles of the course alone and might have made even better time if he had been pushed.

W. J. Hayes, of New York, is the winner of the greatest of all Marathons, because of the slow time, 2:51.16. While it is useless making excuses over the Canadians' failure, still had Longboat been in regular Indian condition the race would have been his by about a mile. He was well in the lead when he dropped, and he dropped because the old wound in his leg had broken out afresh.

The visit of the Prince of Wales was signalized by the conferring of a batch of honors, and among the recipients perhaps none was more agreeably surprised to find himself in the smiles of royalty than Hon. James Pliny Whitney, or as he is now, Sir James Whitney. Equally honored in the Premier of Quebec and Mayor Garneau of Quebec, both of whom receive Knighthood.

Very much apropos of the Quebec Tercentenary celebrations, The Graphic for this week, July 18, contains a magnificent portrait supplement of the Prince and Princess of Wales, a very old contemporary by Mr. Seymour Lucas, R. A., at sittings specially accorded by their Royal Highnesses, and beautifully printed upon art paper. As a further instance of the enterprising methods of The Graphic and the keen interest which it is displaying in things Canadian, it may be mentioned that England's premier illustrated weekly has specially engaged Mr. Frank Craig, one of the best-known draughtsmen in the United Kingdom, to depict in its pages the most striking aspects of the Quebec festivities. He is accompanying the Royal party to Canada for this purpose, and proposes afterwards to make a trip through the Dominion, the artistic results of which will be seen in the pages of The Graphic.

CORSETS AND LINGERIE FOR SHEATH

*One-piece
Lingerie for Sheath Gown.*

WITH all the recent talk and discussion concerning the sheath gown, nothing could be more natural than that a new corset should have been designed to mould the figure into the necessary siph-like form. It did not take the manufacturers long to realize the need, and they have turned out a "machine" wonderful, indeed, in size and shape.

The very latest model is high in the bust and arranged so that the waist is quite round. It is long enough to measure the figure almost to the knees, and the principal innovation is at the hips. The new corset is so cut and bound that it is impossible to indulge in unfashionable hips, no matter on what model nature built the woman. Where a piece of lace might, perhaps, protrude and spoil the long and swathing lines of the new gown, there is a heavy steel, strong enough to control the most obstre, cross fat. Should the hips show a tendency to roundness, which was greatly admitted but a short time ago, the corset, braide or whatever material forms the corset is cut in a way to forbid it. All the art of the corsetiere has been used to prevent such a catastrophe, and to this end the materials have been reinforced by canvas, and bones have been backed by buckram, and many rows of machine stitching have been added.

Of course, if the corset must be long on the hips to form a foundation for the graceful drapery of the skirt, it must also be high in the bust to supply a perfect form for bodice drapery. Some of the latest models are so high that real décolleté is rendered impossible, unless a method be devised to lower the corset in front and back.

Therefore, some corsets are made without stiffening at the top, and the corset may be turned down upon itself, making it sufficiently low for evening gowns.

Good results may be obtained by hooking the corset on the figure while lying down. In this position the muscles are relaxed and the corset may be hooked lower on the figure.

Even though all new corsets must of necessity be long on the hips there are already several variations of the same idea. Some models are much stiffened, holding the figure inflexible, while others admit of much free movement, losing the while none of their good points.

Some, indeed, are so long that it is necessary to curve them so the wearer may sit down. A woman should never wear corsets unless they fit every position which she is likely to assume.

Advice to Correspondents

To Reduce the Bust

TROUBLE—Here is a recipe for a perfectly harmless pomade which will help reduce the size of the bust: Tincture of benzoin, twenty drops; iodide of potassium, forty-five grains; vaseline, one and one-half ounces.

The following may also be recommended: Pure deodorized iodoform, one ounce; vaseline, two ounces; essence of peppermint, twenty drops.

Then cover breasts with two cloths dipped into the following: Pulverized alum, thirty grains; acetate of lead, one ounce; distilled water, eight ounces. Cover the cloths with oiled paper and keep them on all night.

For Oily Hair

ANNNOYED—The following lotion used once a day is a very good one for oily hair: Powdered bicarbonate of soda, one-fourth ounce; borate of soda, powdered, one-fourth ounce; eau de cologne, one fluid ounce, alcohol, two fluid ounces; distilled water, sixteen fluid ounces.

Mix and agitate until solution is complete.

A lotion that will help to cure a "rhiny" nose is made of: Boracic acid, one dram; rosewater, four ounces. Mix.

Apply the lotion to your nose as often as necessary.

Shampoo for Light Hair

L. M. O.—A splendid shampoo for the hair is made of the following: White castile soap, in shavings, one ounce; water, twenty-four ounces; potassium carbonate, thirty grains; borax, 120

TENDER-HEARTED

Miss Aescum—I thought you weren't going to send Marie Melnes on invitation to our party.

Miss Cutting—Oh, I decided it wouldn't be right to hurt her feelings that much.

Miss Aescum—So you sent her one!

Miss Cutting—Yes, but I addressed it to "Miss Melnians."

TITTLE TATTLE

There are people who do nothing do much harm.

Small mistakes may have big consequences.

Some men could only give money in their way.

Generally speaking, a woman is generally speaking.

Derive the good opinions of those who think well of you.

It is not sufficient merely to aim straight, you must hit.

Conceit in a woman is bad enough, but in a man it is awful.

Enthusiasm can't do much with out a certain amount of "hustle."

We can excuse meanness in ourselves, but how we despise it in others!

You may lead an ass to knowledge, but you cannot make him think.

Learning to be content with what we have is hard work for most of us.

Experience shows that if we want a thing cheaply we must pay pretty dearly for it.

"Laugh, and the world laughs with you"—so long as you are not laughing at the world.

"I say, waiter, this cod steak is not half so good as the one I had here last week." "Can't see why, sir. It's off the same fish."

grains; cologne water, two ounces; bay rum, two ounces.

Dissolve the soap in the water and add the other ingredients. Rub well into the roots. Rinse thoroughly in several waters. Then dry carefully.

Do not comb the hair after shampooing until it is thoroughly dry. Combing makes it straight and stringy. Fan and toss it about in the sunshine, if possible.

To Cleanse the Finger Nails

TRINITY—The only way to keep the skin smooth under the nails is by constant applications of cream and by using an orange-wood stick for cleaning. The cleaning should be done only after washing the hands. I am giving you a recipe for a nail cream: Petrolatum, one ounce; white castile soap, powdered, sixty grains; oil of bergamot, three drops.

Eye-brow and Eyelash Grower

ETHHEL—To increase the growth of eyebrows the following formula will make up into a good preparation for the purpose: Cologne, two and a half ounces; glycerine, one and a half ounces; fluid extract of jaborandi, two ounces.

Agitate ingredients till thoroughly incorporated. Apply to the eyebrows with a brush and to the lashes with a tiny camel's-hair paint brush. The brush must be freed from any drop and passed lightly along the edge of the eyelids, exercising extreme care that no minutest portion of the lotion touches the eye itself.

Talcum Powder

MRS. J. L.—The following makes a delightful talcum powder: Fenna starch, fifty grains; powdered talcum, twenty grains; powdered hyposulfite, twenty grains; salol or boric acid, ten grains; essence of violet, twenty grains.

Washing the hands with oatmeal dissolved in water will have the effect of softening and whitening them.

Absolutely Necessary

WORMED—It is absolutely necessary.

may sit down. A woman should never wear corsets unless they fit every position which she is likely to assume.

In order to have a good complexion, to cleanse it thoroughly before retiring for the night. Wash the face with warm water and a good soap, rinse thoroughly in several clear waters and then apply some good lotion or cream to make the skin clear and smooth.

Foot Powder

EVA—When the feet perspire excessively the shoes and stockings should be changed daily.

The following recipe for powder will be found most helpful:

Burnt alum, five grains; salicylic acid, two and one-half grains; starch, fifteen grains; violet talcum powder, fifty grains.

Dust over perspiring feet, which should be bathed at least once daily.

To Develop the Bust

CONSTANT READER—To develop the bust the following may be tried: Lanolin, one ounce; cocoa butter, one ounce; sweet almond oil, one ounce.

Put in a small bowl, set in hot water until melted. Beat together and cool. Each night, after laying hot cloths on bust, rub it in by massaging gently and thoroughly in a circular direction for fifteen minutes.

Fingers Too Stiff

A. W.—Do not worry because your fingers are not limber, for your music teacher will give you finger exercises which, in time, will make your knuckles supple.

To Clear the Complexion

MUDGY—The following treatment is excellent for clearing the complexion: Rub the face, just before washing it, with two teaspoonsful of flowers of sulphur mixed in half a pint of new milk. This mixture should stand a little while before it is used on the face.

To Remove Stains From the Hands

ANXIOUS—To soften, whiten and remove stains from the hands use glycerine and lemon. Put into a bottle two ounces of glycerine, two ounces of water, four tablespoonsful of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. After washing and wiping the hands, rub a little of this mixture into them.

The following exercise is excellent for developing the hips: Stand alternately on each foot, swing the free limb pendulum fashion from the hips, each time allowing it to go as far forward and backward as possible.

Annoying Dandruff

MAT—The falling of your hair is probably due to the excessive dandruff on your scalp. Try the dandruff cure for which I am giving you formula, and I

"John," she replied, fearlessly.

"Mary," he said, "what kind of a breakfast do you call this?"

"I call it an excellent one!" she replied, bravely.

"You do!" he exclaimed. "Well, I don't. I think a little variety occasionally would be a good thing. Do you realize that this is the third morning this week that we have had cold bacon?"

"Certainly, John."

"And that we had cold boiled bacon for dinner yesterday, and cold boiled bacon for supper!"

"Of course, John. You wanted me to manage the house as economically as I could."

"Yes, but—"

"You said that the amount of meat consumed in this house would bankrupt a brewer."

"I know, but I—"

"And that I ought to plan with more regard for the expense."

"Certainly, certainly, Mary; but hang it all—"

"I've been following your instructions."

"But I don't like cold boiled bacon!"

"I know it, John," she said, in a businesslike way. "That's what makes it last so long. It keeps expenses down splendidly, and if you want—"

BATHING CAPS for PRETTY GIRLS

BATHING caps for the summer of 1908 show all sorts of new shapes and styles. There are caps which envelop the whole head, and caps which only frame the laughing face. These head-coverings are of rubberized silk, pure rubber or waterproof satin. Some caps match the bathing suit and others match the trawling thereof.

A cap of rubberized silk in a tartan plaid is arranged with a deep ruffle of pleated silk, which encircles the head and softens the outline of the face.

A bonnet affair of silk seems to have been intended to protect the ears when diving rather than the hair when swimming. After all, nothing is so useful to keep out the salt sea as the pure rubber cap and bandanna. Frills are very well in their way, but the real bathing enthusiast prefers comfort to beauty any day. The most practical headgear is a cap of light rubber, which is held tightly to the head and over which a silk bandanna is arranged. The latter may match the suit, the trimming of the suit, or form a delightful contrast

BATH GOWNS

No one can be well dressed when she is absolutely caged in her clothes. Costumes are nothing without grace and carriage.

The strange fact in connection with the new sheath corsets is that even very slender women wear them. Really they were intended only for those without naturally slight figures, for the less stiffening there is about a sheath gown the nearer it approaches the ideal which was its origin.

The usual summer nets cannot really form satisfactory long-hipped corsets, so most of the good corsets are made of reinforced batiste, coutil or brocade. Some are embroidered in fascinating rosebuds and trimmed with Dresden ribbon. Others are finished at the top with a sort of pointed yoke-like affair of net or allover lace. This, in turn, is bound with pretty ribbon.

The new corset, however, is not the only undergarment that has been invented for the sheath gown. The "pantalon-cache" is the latest accompaniment to the new costume. This garment endeavors to supplant the time-honored petticoat. It will be interesting to watch the encounter.

condition of the blood. The salve, formula of which is given below, is very soothing and healing, but to effect a permanent cure you had better take some treatment for your blood.

Formula: White wax, one ounce; spermaceti, one ounce; oil of almonds, one-fourth pint.

Melt; pour into a mortar which has been heated by being immersed some time in boiling water. Very gradually add three ounces of rosewater and one ounce of witch hazel, and assiduously stir the mixture until an emulsion is formed and the mixture is nearly cold.

Remedy for Hangnails

DOROTHY—Hangnails are due to excessive dryness of the skin surrounding the nails. Try rubbing the base of the nail every night with a little good cold cream. That should help to cure them.

A Weak Side

Aids to Health and Beauty

The Necessity of Footbaths

NOT only are the feet kept comfortable, but the well-being of the entire body depends much upon the care bestowed upon the feet. The feet should be washed daily in tepid water and soap, finishing with a dash of cold water to quicken circulation and to prevent them becoming too sensitive.

If the feet are dry, rub in a little good cream until absorbed.

For feet which suffer from excessive perspiration a little carbolic acid—twenty or thirty drops in a basin of water—is efficacious. The stockings should be changed daily and the street shoes exchanged for slippers when resting in your room.

Tired Feet

After bathing tired feet in hot water it is very soothing to rub them with olive oil.

Summer Hives

Hives, as a rule, are the result of a disordered stomach. They require both internal and external remedies.

The best medicine is a dose of castor oil, the quantity, of course, to depend upon the age of the patient.

Bathing with water to which bicarbonate of soda has been added is one of the best means of allaying the intense irritation. Constant and frequent applications of good cold cream will also soothe wonderfully.

Eat Moderately

In order to be in perfect health one must be temperate in eating. The meals also should be regular. Regularity is one of the golden rules of a well-ordered life.

To Have a Clear Skin

A clear skin is one of the essentials of good health and beauty, and nothing conduces more to this end than frequent baths and brisk rubbings. They will do much to keep the skin soft and the whole body vigorous.

The Correct Time for Bathing

The morning is the best time for a cold water bath, a tepid one morning or night, but a hot water bath should be taken just before retiring, inasmuch as it is relaxing. Never bathe just after a hearty meal. Bathe regularly every day.

Cleanliness is Necessary

The scalp, like the rest of the body, to be kept healthy must be kept clean. Shampoo your hair once every two weeks if it is inclined to be oily, and about once a month if it is the least bit dry.

To Open the Pores

To remove blackheads, and also to soften the skin before applying cold creams and lotions, apply a soft linen towel wrung out of moderately hot water. Do not have the water hot enough to burn the skin. Apply the towel to the face, pressing it well down into the curves of the eyes, nose and mouth. Repeat several times until the skin is pink and soft. In this condition it will absorb much more of the oils and lotions, greatly increasing their effective properties.

A Change Will Prove Helpful

Frequently change the mode of wearing the hair, else falling hair is likely to result. That portion of the scalp

THE S. S. LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

AUG. 2.

Lesson V. David Anointed at Bethlehem. 1 Sam. 16. 7.

Verse 1. How long wilt thou mourn for Saul—See 1 Sam. 15. 35. Samuel's life had been thrown in with that of Saul by a long line of circumstances through many years. Saul's downfall was a personal grief to him. But he was still God's prophet, and as his agent any indulgence in an individual sorrow would be wrong. He must now take his part in God's selection of Saul's successor.

I have rejected him—The sentence has been passed, though Saul is still recognized as king.

Fill thy horn with oil—Oil pressed from the olive was one of the staple products among the Hebrews. Its uses were so constant and varied that it may possibly have been commonly carried about on the person, and an ordinary horn was a most convenient receptacle. It is probable, however, that the use of specially prepared oil (Exod. 30. 23-25) in the anointing of the kings was already the custom. In that case the oil would be holy oil and the horn a sacred vessel used by Samuel only on ceremonial occasions.

Jesse—A descendant of Ruth, the Moabites, and Boaz of Judah (Ruth 4. 17).

Bethlehemite—One who lived in Bethlehem. This is one of the earliest references to the town endeared to all Christians as the birthplace of Jesus. It was situated on a hill about six miles south of Jerusalem. It had a fairly important part in Hebrew history and especially since the time of Christ has been a centre of interest. The Crusaders took great care to give it protection. It is still inhabited by Christians.

2. How can I go!—This is not the only instance of the loss of courage on the part of one of Jehovah's servants (compare Elijah 1 Kings 19. 2ff.), but it is hardly becoming to the brave prophet of 1 Sam. 15. 14ff.

3. And Jehovah said . . . say I am come to sacrifice—It was not inconsistent with the laws of truth for Samuel to say that he came to sacrifice, for it was true, and God tells him that on his doing so, he will then show him what else he shall do. It is sometimes agreed that anything short of the whole truth is of necessity deception, but God in his wisdom leads us but day by day, step by step, and well it is for us that we are not called upon to bear the burden of the future. We are under obligation to tell the exact truth even to our enemies, but we are not under obligation to tell them everything we know. Samuel's fears were ignored. God tells him again to go and that as he obeys he will give him further instructions as to what he shall do.

4. Elders of the city—They were responsible for its welfare. Some of them, at least, sat in the gate as judges, and from here they came to meet him.

think it will soon disappear and your hair will then stop falling:
Tincture of cantharides, one ounce;
liquid ammonia, one dram; glycerine, one-half ounce; oil of thyme, one-half ounce; rosemary oil, one-half dram.
Mix all together with six ounces of rosewater. Rub the scalp thoroughly with the preparation.

Eruption on Face

WORRIED—There is usually an inward cause for eruptions on the face. Generally they are due to the impure excessive dryness of the skin surrounding the nails. Try rubbing the base of the nail every night with a little good cold cream. That should help to cure them.

A Weak Side

MOTHER—The only thing for you to do is to consult a reliable physician. Simple treatment will, perhaps, be all that is needed to make you strong and well. I advise you to attend to the matter immediately.

Here is a recipe that will make up into a very good hair oil: Two ounces sweetened castor oil; two ounces coconut oil; one ounce oil of rosemary; one-half dram oil of jasmine.
Mix oils with gentle heat; bottle; shake for five minutes.

properties.

A Change Will Prove Helpful

Frequently change the mode of wearing the hair, else falling hair is likely to result. That portion of the scalp where the hair is coiled and pinned receives no sunlight and the coiled hair no ventilation.

For a Discolored Neck

For a discolored neck apply cucumbers cut in strips, binding them to the neck and keeping them on all night. In the morning wash off and rub well with cold cream; then wipe the neck with a soft towel. Repeat this treatment until the discoloration disappears.

responsible for its welfare. Some of them, at least, sat in the gate as judges, and from here they came to meet him.

Trembling—The unusual sight of the old "man of God" indicated an errand of great importance and perhaps of disaster to the city.

5. Sanctify yourselves—By meeting the requirements of ceremonial "cleanliness" with such washings and abstinence as the law demanded (Exod. 19. 10, etc.). Of course this would be accompanied by an inward preparation of heart for the act of worship.

And he sanctified—Samuel himself superintended the preparation of this family, thus gaining the opportunity for a private selection from among the sons.

6. Eliab—Probably the same brother who is mentioned as Elihu in 1 Chron. 27. 18.

Jehovah's anointed—That is, the one who is to be Jehovah's anointed.

7. But Jehovah said—Not by lot, nor in any other external way, but by an inward impression.

His countenance—This was nothing against him, for David was "goodly to look upon" (verse 12), but it was not to be allowed to weigh against the fact that Jehovah had rejected him.

Height of his stature—This was one of the determining facts in the people's choice of Saul who in several external traits clearly was of superior mould for the high office of king. Now Jehovah proposes to use another and higher standard.

8. Then Jesse called—He was cooperating with Samuel. From this and from verse 10 it appears that Samuel took Jesse into his confidence. The brothers, however, did not later accord David the reverence and honor which was due the Lord's anointed (1 Sam. 17. 25), nor did he ever claim it during the years which followed before Saul's death. The true meaning of his anointing, therefore, was probably not realized by either him or his brothers.

11. The youngest—Not old enough to be taken into account.

He is keeping the sheep—Although this was boy's work and under some circumstances very easy, it was likely at any time to require courage and action (1 Sam. 17. 34). It was a splendid training in self-reliance by which David later profited.

Sit down—The sacrifice was followed by a meal, more or less religious in character.

12. Ruddy—It is not clear whether this means weather-beaten or having red hair. At any rate, it was deemed a mark of beauty.

Withal of a beautiful countenance—There is difficulty in the translation of this phrase. By the addition of one letter in the Hebrew text it would read "a lad of fair eyes."

13. The Spirit of Jehovah came mightily upon David—This was considered as the direct result of the official anointing. It began at once even though the ceremony was in secret, and in contrast to Saul's temporary and intermittent faithfulness was from that day forward.

Ramah—It will be remembered that this city was Samuel's home.

LIKELY.

GETS THE DOCTOR HABIT.

Woman Who Likes to Pour Out Story of Aches and Pains.

One of the tendencies of ill-health is to make one morbid. People who are constantly thinking about their ailments, worrying about their troubles, suffering pain, often develop a morbid passion for sympathy. They want to tell everybody of their aches and pains, to describe their symptoms, says a writer. Have you ever known a woman who has acquired the doctor habit, a woman who lives nothing in the world quite as well as an opportunity to tell the doctor of her ailments? She has poured them out to unwelcome ears, to tired listeners, till she longs for some one who can really appreciate and sympathize with her. She has sent two she sends for the doctor to see to her. This becomes a habit, a mania, with some women, who have a few odd ailments to divert them. Their minds naturally revert to themselves, and they think of their unfortunate condition until they become saturated with the poisoned thought.

KEEP YOUR FAITH BUSY

It Would Be Better to Suffer Some Loss From Imposition Than to Lose One's Heart.

"To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin."—James, 14. 17.

In certain types of religious meetings you may hear people deplore the loss of emotional exaltation once enjoyed; they pray for a return of "spiritual blessings"; they earnestly seek for the repetition of experiences, the return of floods of emotions once felt. So many a person is wondering why the emotional pleasures of religion have gone from him.

The reason is simple: That stimulus of religious emotion which seems pleasant to the memory fails to return because when it was first felt we failed to obey it, to put it into active expression. Subjectively, the pleasurable experiences of religion are the emotions and exaltations of high ideals. The price of continuance is the practice of the ideals.

You cannot do away with feeling in religion; the extent to which it will be manifested depends on the individual, even undemonstrative natures are influenced by it to an extent which no one can measure. You might as well look to have patriotism without excitement as religion without emotion; but the danger is that both patriotism and religion shall evaporate in emotional excitement.

Every time you enjoy an emotion without attempting to employ it as a dynamic for some definite service you both lessen the power of that emotion to appeal to you and the possibility of your answering to its stimulus.

Arouse deep feeling and high sentiments and allow them to become ends in themselves, and their ends are sure to be only evil.

Any impression to which we do not give expression results in inner paralysis both of emotions and will. When pity, sympathy, aspiration, indignation, or the passion for righteousness stir within one needs carefully to watch lest we lose sight of the duties, the toil, and service to which these are calling.

We are all in danger from the atrophy of our emotions. One views a dramatic appeal in which social wrongs are shown, one reads a novel appealing to the sense of justice or pity and goes his way, having enjoyed the sensations of anger or pity, but making no attempt to give voice and form to his sentiments. He has seared his soul. He has stiffened the finer moral muscles.

There is only one way to keep the heart green like a fair garden where the emotions spring up and flow refreshingly, and that way is to make every emotion contribute in some way to life's fruitfulness, let every tide of feeling, every passion and impulse, find expression in action, either the action of obedience to its call or of resolute and positive opposition.

The emotional life is worthy of cultivation. For us all it constitutes one of the perennial sources of joy and strength. The pleasures of the home, of friendships, of love, of doing good, of helping one another are all emotional experiences. They are kept alive and we remain sensitive to these finer feelings in the measure that we do their high bidding.

We need to keep our hearts tender one to another; we need to watch lest selfishness sear the soul, lest the fear of imposition make us deaf to the cry of

GENUINE SUFFERING.

It would be better far to suffer some small loss from imposition than to lose one's heart, one's power to respond from the practice of constant calculation and scepticism.

If we are seeking lost joys in religion we shall never find them until we turn from that search to seek out the joyless, to yield to every good emotion of kindness, to care nothing how we may feel or what we may gain if only the dreams of a better world and of happier humanity which once refreshed us may be realized.

In the endeavor to make real those visions which, as they broke upon us, appeared so beautiful, we find that they return to us. Service is the one hope of the salvation of our powers of feeling; endeavor preserves emotion; expression makes possible new impressions.

If you would keep your faith alive you must keep it busy. If you would hold on to your religious joys you must give them away to the joyless lives. No man feels his heart by thinking about it; it is when he actually feeds the hungry that his own heart is refreshed, it is when he carries the cup of cool water to another that the well of eternal water springs up within him.

PERSIA'S POOR SOLDIERS

QUEER MAKEUP OF THE SHAH'S ARMY.

Source of Revenue to Governors of Province — Payment of "Blood Tax."

The Persian soldier, in torn clothing and barefoot, is more like a beggar than a warrior. For all this he killed the recent counter revolution when he refused to fire upon the Parliament. As to the size of Persia's fighting hosts, it is difficult to arrive at accuracy; "officially" the Persian army numbers 105,500 men, but the actual "standing army," says the London Globe, consists of only 24,500 men, who are quartered in the larger towns and on the frontiers.

The infantry numbers seventy-eight to eighty battalions, each of 800 to 1,000 men, but the full strength is never maintained, for only half the battalion is called up, and then in a reduced number. The men called up often receive no pay for six months, and thus in every town the soldiers are forced to work at a trade or to become beggars. There are no proper barracks in most of the towns and the men live with their families in private houses.

There is no systematic drilling, and there is no practical instruction in rifle firing; in fact, many men cannot handle a rifle at all. The rifles used mainly are the Werndt gun, which was rejected by Austria in the '80s and sold to Persia; but there are also Peabody and Martini rifles. However, the men serving use nearly always guns with percussion caps and ramrods.

THE AGES OF THE SOLDIERS

vary very much; there are undeveloped boys and toothless men of 60 years, for the unfit are not weeded out at the right time. The lists of men liable to serve are badly kept, so that on a levy it is found that some of the men called up have been dead for several years.

The army is a source of revenue to the Governors of the provinces. On his appointment a Governor announces that he wishes to get rid of the older men and to have a younger type of soldier. The local people know what that means; a deputation waits upon the energetic new Governor, he is asked to name a sum which shall induce him to let things go on as before. He does so, and everybody is content.

More than twenty regiments are recruited from the Azerbaijan province in Northern Persia, while forty regiments come from the Aratschek-Anjim province; the rest are recruited in Khorassan and Kershan. The "blood tax" paid for evading military service varies; in some provinces it is as much as £16 per man, in others it is only about £4.

The town populations, certain khans and the leasers of crown domains are free from service, as are also the Jews, the Armenians and the "Fire Worshipers," but the last named are made by the Governors of Kershan to contribute the maintenance of twenty foot soldiers. A few provinces, like Yezd and Kashan, furnish no men as soldiers, as the people of those regions are distinguished by extraordinary cowardice.

THE ARTILLERY BRANCH

the Persian authorities cannot rely upon them. In northwest Persia the tribes incline toward the Afghans and in northwest Persia toward the Turks.

Persia's best irregular cavalry is formed from the nomad tribes of the central region, for they can furnish nearly 100,000 well armed horsemen. However, they can be induced to take the field only when their own interests are involved. At all other times they prefer to attack the peaceful caravans.

TIMBER FAMINE.

Has Been Here for Some Years, Dr. Fernow Thinks.

"We have been talking for twenty-six years on this subject of a probable timber famine, and some time ago I was asked where was that predicted timber famine. I said, 'You have been asleep; it is on us already, for when prices rise continuously at a rapid rate there must be a famine.' Not an absolute absence of material, but an increase of prices makes a famine; and the prices have risen very steadily, as you see.

"This more or less horizontal line," referring to a diagram exhibited at the meeting, "indicates the prices before 1899, while this rapidly ascending curve represents the prices since that year, and from the character of the curve you can see that this rise in prices will go on, as may also be predicted from other data, I assure you. Every year you pay just eight per cent. more for your wood than you did the year before. Have you no interest in that? I mean has the public in general no interest in the forestry question? It seems to me they have. Everybody must have an interest in it, because it touches his pocket.

"There is another point I wish to make, namely, that, while before 1899 prices went up and down from year to year, but on the whole remained level, from the year 1899 prices of all grades of wood began an upward course. What is the reason? The explanation is simple. In 1899 the data collected by the United States Census regarding supply and demand of forest products became known, which showed that in predicting this timber famine we were not so very far out of the way.

"Not supply and demand, but knowledge of supply and demand makes prices, and the trouble has been in the past the absence of knowledge as to our timber resources, and this lack of knowledge still works against our work of reform. During the last few years the knowledge has increased and the result has been that prices have risen as it became known that the supply was less than had been supposed." —Dr. B. E. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry, University of Toronto, at annual meeting of Canadian Forestry Association, 1908.

WOULDN'T MURDER CZAR

SCHOOLMISTRESS COMMITTED SUICIDE INSTEAD.

Appointed by Revolutionists to Do It at Reval, Threw Herself in Front of Train.

It has just leaked out in St. Petersburg that, despite the extraordinary precautions taken to protect the Czar on the occasion of his visit to Reval to meet King Edward his Majesty has had a narrow escape from assassination. A terrorist plot was organized by the revolutionists which would have been successful but for the refusal of the woman appointed as "executioner" to carry out the work.

The woman, a local school mistress, committed suicide on the railway by throwing herself in front of a train two days before the Czar arrived in Reval from Peterhof.

CALLED IN SCHOOLMISTRESS.

The connection of the woman with the revolutionary organization was never suspected by the authorities. Apparently she joined the revolutionists a long time ago, and afterward withdrew from active work in the organization.

When it became known that the Czar would come to Reval to meet King Edward, the principal terrorist groups at once tried to devise means for attacking him. Peterhof is absolutely impregnable, and the railway was so well guarded that an attack was out of the question during the journey to Reval.

Learning that on one would be admitted to the railway station here to witness the Czar's arrival except the school children and their teachers, the terrorists at once called on the mistress who had been identified with their cause to prove her loyalty by assassinating the Czar.

SHE CHOSE SUICIDE.

Inasmuch as there were no barriers at the station, and no special precaution to keep back the school children, it would have been an easy matter for the woman to walk up to the Czar and throw a bomb which would have destroyed all the members of the imperial family as they walked from the train to the quay.

The schoolmistress either repented of her connection with the terrorists, or she was too fond of her school children to take advantage of the opportunity offered by their presence. She deliberately chose suicide as the only alternative to carrying out the mandate of the revolutionaries.

The police searched her room and found nothing of an incriminating nature, but her fellow-teachers and the townspeople are aware of her story.

This shows the risk run by the Czar, despite the most painstaking efforts of the authorities to protect him. His Majesty has shown great courage in thus venturing from the security of his palaces for the first time in years, and taking a long journey solely to meet King Edward.

is similar to the infantry, but the men are much better trained and clothed, while they receive their pay more regularly. Although this force, on paper, consists of 6,000 men, yet only 2,000 men are on service, and they are in battalions, each of from 200 to 250 men.

The men, horses and guns are all managed by independent officials; thus the horses are in the care of a General who keeps them not near the guns in the arsenal, but in some place where the forage is cheap. The horses are not trained to gun firing. The projectiles are kept in the arsenals and generally they are not charged. The powder is made in private powder mills, and is of very poor quality. There are about fifty guns of the Uchapins type, and also nearly one thousand obsolete guns, of which scarcely a hundred can be used.

The infantry possesses no properly organized system of transport. In case of need the people are "commandeered," especially the village folk when they bring their garden stuff and products into the towns. Thus when the word goes round the countryside that a regiment has to be moved from a town, then the villagers stay at home until the soldiers have been moved.

Even the animals conveying caravans of goods are seized, and the owners of beasts of burden will refuse to convey goods for the time, as they dread losing their beasts. Every soldier receives a donkey, while camels are used for carrying the provisions. If a soldier has an ass of excellent quality allotted to him he often runs away with the animal at the last stopping place.

The command of a battalion is sold and sometimes for as much as £2,200 or £3,200. Everybody wishes to become an officer, as an officer's pay is continued to his family after his death, thus there are many detachments of ninety men with twelve officers.

PERSIA'S CAVALRY

is regular and irregular. The former comprises the Ispahan Cavalry Regiment of 500 men, trained by German instructors, and the Teheran Cossack brigade, trained by Russian instructors. This Cossack brigade numbers 1,000 men and is equipped with the Russian cavalry type of the Berdan rifle. To the Teheran Cossack brigade belongs also the division of artillery, with eight field guns of Russian make. This brigade is well trained. There are also in Teheran more than 1,000 mounted Persian horsemen, who are the Shah's permanent bodyguard.

Sometimes they are quartered in the provinces. The mounted militia is supplied by the Khans of the various provinces, but it has no special organization. Its equipment is varied, although it can be equipped for war with the Werndt gun, which is stored in the arsenals.

According to the lists the mounted militia numbers about 25,000 men, but not all of them are called up. Some of these irregular cavalry belong to very brave races, especially to tribes in northeast Persia, but as they have nothing at all in common with the Persians and are often at enmity with them report by M. Arnaune, Director of the Mint, published recently. This document asserts that 8,293,000,000 franc ($1,658,600,000) of coined money has disappeared from circulation in the last hundred years.

The present gold coinage of France dates back to 1803 the silver pieces to 1796, copper to 1852. They began to make nickel coins in 1903. In the century from 1803 to 1903 there was coined a total of about 15,916,000,000 francs. From this there is a deduction to be made for certain issues demonetized and for light pieces recoined. The net amount was 15,293,000,000 francs.

More than half of this has disappeared. Estimates of the money in actual circulation in France have been made by the State in 1878, 1885, 1891, 1897, and 1903. Correcting the latest of these by comparison with the others the conclusion is that there is in circulation 6,990,000,000 francs, leaving 8,293,000,000 francs unaccounted for.

Various theories are advanced to account for this discrepancy. Part of the loss is doubtless due to use of the precious metals in the arts. Part is due to great calamities—fires and shipwrecks. A very large part is caused by exports of gold.

But taking all these factors into consideration there remains a vast sum unaccounted for. Some of it has doubtless been hoarded, some hidden and forgotten, some lost outright.

PROPHESIED-GERMANY'S END.

Monk Who Picked Wilhelm II. to End His Dynasty.

Five years more and the German Empire will come to an end. So at least says a prophecy made in the thirteenth century by a monk named Hermann, who lived in the monastery of Lehnin in Brandenburg, where he wrote a work in Latin concerning the future destiny of Germany for many centuries. The work is styled the "Vaticinium Lehninense," and it is in verses after the manner of the Sybilline books.

The monk seems to have foretold the defeat at Jena and the constitution of the Germanic Confederation in 1815. Unfortunately the prophetic Hermann foretells in plain language the downfall of the Hohenzollern dynasty, and William II. is destined to be the last of his race to sit in the imperial throne. The verses that foretell this are:

"Verse 93. Tandem sceptrum gerit qui stemmatis ultimus erit:

"Verse 94. Israel infandum secus audet morte pium."

[At last the sceptre is in the hands of him who will be the last of the royal race. Israel attempts an execrable crime that death alone can expiate.]

In 1840 William I., King of Prussia, consulted a celebrated soothsayer, who in answer to his queries told him that he would ascend the throne in 1849, that the German Empire would be established in 1871, that he would die in 1888, and that the German Empire would come to an end in 1913. The first three prophecies have been fulfilled to the very letter.

"You're rather a young man to be left in charge of a drug store," said the fussy old gentleman. "Have you any diploma?" "Why—er—no, sir," replied the shopman; "but we have a preparation of our own that's just as good."

work have fallen from the tower. Fifteen tons of bananas were delivered at Dundee one day recently 'o one fruit salesman. This is three times the quantity which formed the weekly delivery about a couple of years ago.

INFLUENCE OF THE MULLAHS.

No One Dares Lay Sacrilegious Finger Upon Them.

Ever since the beginning of the now constant troubles in India a good deal has been heard about the Mullahs, says Pearson's Weekly.

A Mullah, or, as it is more properly written, mollah, is a title given in India and throughout the East generally to a religious leader of any description.

Thus, the Sultan of Turkey is a mollah, because he is the supreme head of the Moslem world. The hostile Somali leader who caused us so much anxiety between 1901 and 1905, and whose name occasionally crops up even now in the daily papers, was also a mollah. And there are hundreds of others.

To most of the more conspicuous among them we prefix the adjective "mad." This, however, must not be taken to mean that they are insane, the word being used rather in its Oriental signification of "inspired."

The influence wielded by the mollahs who are now stirring up against us the border tribes of Afghanistan is enormous. Clad in their sacred robes, bearing aloft the green standard of Islam, they go up and down the valleys shrilling the Mohammedan war cry, and woe be to him who refuses to heed.

The person of the mollah is sacred. True, the Amir the other day was reported to have ordered that any of them caught preaching the jihad (holy war) should have their tongues torn out. But if he really issued such an edict—which is extremely doubtful—it was merely meant for European ears. Not even the mighty Habibullah himself would care to lay a sacrilegious finger on one of these saintly personages. If he were to venture such an unheard of thing vengeance would surely overtake him. For it is the cardinal principle of the Ulima—as the mollahs are collectively termed—that an injury purposely caused to one of their number can only be atoned for by the death of the individual inflicting it.

HORSE IN MODERN WARFARE.

As Many as 230,000 Wanted at Short Notice in Boer War.

The horse is one of the most important factors in modern warfare, and his education for this purpose is undertaken at great expense by every nation in the world.

In times of peace only two-thirds of the cavalry of the British Army is horsed. In times of war—such as during the Boer War—as many as 230,000 horses have been required at short notice. Germany would need about 1,000,000 horses for cavalry and artillery to put her colossal forces in the field, while France could manage with 750,000.

Britain's bill for army horses is estimated at about $400,000 a year. France spends upwards of $500,000 annually, while Germany, it has been calculated, must pay at least $1,500,000 on this feature of military.

a long journey solely to meet King Edward.

COST OF EUROPEAN WAR.

Startling Statistics by German Authority.

The bellicose section of the German public, including the fire-eaters of the army, have been rather taken aback by a bulletin issued by the General Staff on the authority of General Blume as to the probable cost of a modern European war.

Germany, it is affirmed, would be able to put 4,750,000 troops in the field. A war fought against another European power would cost Germany $1,500,000,000 per annum as long as it lasted. The indirect loss through financial depression and the paralysis of industry would be greater. If three or four more European powers were involved, as would be likely in view of existing alliances, the drain on the resources of Europe would be appalling.

Incidentally Gen. Blume expresses the opinion that the loss of life would be heavier than in the recent Russo-Japanese armies in the field were killed or wounded. Reckoning in the same proportion, a European power would lose approximately 900,000 killed and wounded during the same length of time, and Gen. Blume believes the proportion would be much higher. He declares it would be a veritable orgy of blood.

CLOCK FEEDS HORSES.

English Merchant Invents Ingenious Contrivance.

A provision merchant in Oldham, England, has invented an ingenious contrivance by which he is able to feed his horses without personal attendance through the medium of an alarm clock. In a small office adjoining the stable the clock is placed on a shelf. Attached to the winding key is a piece of copper wire, and this is fastened to a small brass roller that runs over a wooden rod. At the end of the rod is a heavy weight. When the clock goes off the wheel is drawn over the rod and releases the weight, which falls to the floor. The corn box is filled over night, and when the weight is released a small door at the bottom of the box flies open and the corn falls into the manger. The horses never fail to rise at the sound of the alarm, knowing what is to follow and when the drivers turn up the animals are ready to be harnessed.

"Is that so, indade?" returned the generous Irishman. "Then, we'll fight it out wid guillotines."

"Your honor," said a lawyer to the judge, "every man who knows me knows that I am incapable of lending myself to a mean cause." "True," said his opponent; "the learned gentleman never lends himself to a mean cause; he always gets cash down."

NEW TELEPHONE MARVEL

WONDERFUL THINGS BY NEW INVENTION.

Sketches can be Sent as Well as Messages—How the Apparatus Works.

The marvel of the telephone has become commonplace through daily usage. Fresh interest, however, is likely to be aroused in its wonderful possibilities by a new invention, of which a demonstration has just been witnessed in London, England.

The inventor is a German, Herr Gustav Grazanna, and his mission to England is an outcome of the new patent laws. His marvellous apparatus has already been exhibited in Germany, where it has aroused profound interest.

WITH ANY TELEPHONE.

Herr Grzanna can transmit handwriting, sketches, etc., over an ordinary telephone wire for very considerable distances and within the period of a few seconds, thus making a considerable advance on the old system of electric wiring at a distance. He uses a low tension current—viz., 12 volts—in the transmitting and receiving boxes. His apparatus can be made an auxiliary of common telephonic communication, and, therefore, its commercial utilization is ready to hand.

Herr Grzanna's messages are passed through as fast as they are written, and the transmitter uses the pencil naturally. Other systems require somewhat laborious handling of the transmitting mechanism, so that it takes about half an hour to send and receive even a short sentence. In fact, the Grazanna instrument is the autographic double of the voice in telephonic communication. One can actually speak and write or draw at the same time through the same wires, the telephone being connected with the apparatus through a condenser of two microfarads.

USES ILLUSTRATED.

Say an engineer is ordering material by telephone from a manufacturer. He can furnish plans of the bolts, plates, rails etc., which he requires. Similarly, a newspaper artist can sketch an event on the spot—a railway disaster, for instance—and transmit it to the editor hundreds of miles away, accompanying it with a verbal description as he draws; or, if the correspondent be a reporter, he can make use of a photograph by tracing its outlines. In military operations maps, plans, or diagrams illustrating the enemy's movements as they unfold themselves can be wired back to headquarters.

HOW INSTRUMENT WORKS.

This wonderful system of telautography is accomplished by means of a light ray travelling over sensitized paper. The graphite pencil at the transmitter end has two electrical contacts, one for horizontal and the other for vertical movement, a curve being made up of the component parts of one or the other. On taking the pencil from off its rest a tiny electric glow lamp in the receiver box is conducted to a prism, from which it is reflected on to two little pivoted mirrors, one of which cor-

TOLSTOI'S ARRAIGNMENT

DECLARES RUSSIAN PEOPLE ARE BECOMING DEPRAVED

Aged Novelist Can No Longer Endure His Country's Great Wrongs.

Driven to a fever of anger, indignation and despair by the awful massacres on the hangman's scaffold which are now sweeping over Russia, Count Leo Tolstoi has written the most terrible arraignment of the Czar and his agents of execution that ever came from the great novelist's pen. 'The article is entitled, "I cannot be silent." After describing in detail the execution of twelve men for an attack made with intent to rob on a landed proprietors' estate, the aged novelist says:—

PEOPLE BEING DEPRAVED.

What is most dreadful in the whole matter is that all this inhuman violence and killing, besides the direct evil done to the victims and their families, brings a yet more enormous evil on the whole people by spreading depravity—as fire spreads amid dry straw—among every class of Russians.

A short time ago there were not two executioners to be found in all Russia. In the eighties there was only one. Not so now!

A small shopkeeper in Moscow, whose affairs were in a bad way, having offered his services to perform the murders arranged by Government and receiving a hundred roubles (50) for each person hung, soon mended his affairs so well that he no longer required this additional business, and is now carrying on his former trade.

VOLUNTEER HANGMAN'S PRICE.

In Orel last month an executioner was wanted, and at once a man was found who agreed with the organizers of governmental murders to do the business for fifty roubles per head. But the volunteer hangman, after making this agreement, heard that more was paid in other towns, and at the time of the execution, having put the shroud sack on the victim, instead of leading him to the scaffold, stopped, and, approaching the superintendent, said: "You must add another twenty-five roubles, your Excellency, or I won't do it." He got the increase and he did the job.

Of executions, hangings, murders and bombs people now write and speak as they used to speak about the weather. Children play at hangings. Lads from the high schools, who are almost children, go out on expropriating expeditions ready to kill, just as they used to go hunting.

ARRAIGNMENT OF THE CZAR.

The executioner-at-first-hand knows that he is an executioner and that he does wrong, and is therefore hated, and he is afraid of men, and I think this consciousness and this fear before men atone for at least a part of his guilt.

But you all—from the Secretary of the Court to the Premier and the Czar—you indirect participants in the iniquities perpetrated every day—do not seem to feel your guilt nor the shame your participation in these horrors should evoke.

DREAM GAVE FREEDOM

SAVED FROM A LIFE SENTENCE IN PENITENTIARY.

Supposed Murderer Made Free in Texas by Evidence From a Dream.

Pardoned from a penitentiary life sentence because of a dream—such is the romantic circumstance surrounding the release of George W. Jones from the Texas state prison at Huntsville, where he was incarcerated for eleven years on the charge of murdering a woman.

In many respects Jones was a remarkable convict. The murder for which he was imprisoned was committed in Williamson county. A woman whose name had been handled more or less by local gossip was found dead. Certain circumstances seemingly pointed to Jones as the murderer. He was tried and convicted. His wife showed her devotion by removing from her home to Huntsville, the penitentiary town, so that she might visit him frequently. He was well-to-do and furnished money for her support.

CUT OFF RIGHT HAND.

Jones maintained his innocence of the crime, setting forth that he was at all times devoted to his wife and had never associated with other women. For about a year Mrs. Jones was a frequent caller at the prison. It was the one bright spot in Jones' prison life—these visits from his wife.

But there came a time when the visits were not so frequent. Jones pined, but his wife explained that she feared to gain the displeasure of the prison officials. She felt that they were annoyed by her calls.

One day after the visits had slackened there came a civil officer to the prison with a divorce summons for Jones.

Jones glanced at it hurriedly—he realized its meaning.

Catching up the hatchet with which he had been working, he severed his right hand at the wrist, and with his left he handed the amputated member to the deputy sheriff, saying:—

"Take this back to my wife and tell her it is my answer to her divorce petition—my good right hand; a hand that has never committed a crime, but has worked all these years for her support."

The divorce was granted and the wife soon married again—married a man whom she met in Huntsville, where she was living to be near her convict husband.

STRANGER HAD DREAM.

Jones' wounded arm healed after a painful siege, but he always mourned for his wife, and often in the night the guards on their rounds would hear him sobbing her name.

And now for the strange part of the story.

J. H. Waldrup, who lives at Chester, Tex., and who ten years ago read newspaper accounts of how Jones had chopped his right hand off, dreamed a few weeks ago of the affair. He also saw in his dream, the murder of the woman—saw the tragedy enacted, he declares, as plainly as though he had been an actual eyewitness. Waldrup was not acquainted with Jones — had never even seen him, but he was

MONKEY STUDENTS' RIOT.

Three Rowdy Members of Monkolology Class Went on Rampage.

Just because the teacher kept them after school "Tom," "Dick" and "Harry," three of the brightest ring-tail students in Prof. Haggerty's monkolology class in the Bronx Zoo, New York, went on the rampage one day recently.

During the professor's lecture on the growth and habits of the goober, a subject of particular interest to all chimpanzees, Thomas, Richard and Harold amused themselves by throwing spitballs and pulling the hair of the younger children. Prof. Haggerty warned them, but they paid no attention, and when the rest of the class was dismissed for the day the three rowdies were locked in the room.

As soon as the teacher turned the key in the lock the three monkeys got busy. First they scampered around the professor's desk and threw the scientific apparatus and charts on the floor. Selecting a book, "Who's Who in the Monkey Monkey," they mutilated the pages and ripped off the binding. Every bit of reference to their ancestors, which it has taken Haggerty years to collect, was chewed in bits.

Then they turned their attention to his personal wardrobe. His handsome gold watch on the table gave the ingenious monkeys a splendid chance to show their imitative ability. One of them took Haggerty's shaving cup, made a lather and smeared it all over the watch. Another one grabbed the professor's razor. Joe Riley, floorwalker in the monkey house, gave the alarm and brought the professor to witness the wreck.

CHILD LABOR IN SPAIN.

The question of child labor is being agitated in Spain. Under the Spanish law children between 10 and 14 may not work more than six hours a day in industrial establishments, nor more than eight hours a day in offices. Now a decree has been passed forbidding the employment of boys under 16 and women under 25 in a number of trades deemed injurious to health. Chemical works, glass works, the manufacture of ether, of celluloid and of explosives and the handling of lead or arsenic colors are among the forbidden fields.

A woman doesn't object to a husband with a will of his own—providing it is in her favor.

other for vertical movement, a curve being made up of the component parts of one or the other. On taking the pencil from off its rest a tiny electric glow lamp in the receiver box is conducted to a prism, from which it is reflected on to two little pivoted mirrors, one of which corresponds with the circuit of the horizontal movement and the other with that of the vertical.

The light ray produced by the mirrors is absolutely identical with the movements of the point of the pencil, and it is thrown upon the section of a spool of sensitized paper, set to receive it. By unhooking the attachment to the receiver box containing the photographic film, and substituting a focussing glass, the evolutions of the light ray can be watched. It appears as a tiny pinhead of light, travelling in all directions over the glass—really imitating exactly the handwriting of drawing of the transmitter.

PHOTOGRAPHED MESSAGE.

On laying the pencil down, the lamp is extinguished, and a little sensitized paper, on which the message has just been photographed, passes it through a chemical bath, in which it is developed, and in ten seconds the writing or sketch becomes visible; while another film is unwound from the spool and placed in position to receive the next message. The receiver has now but to cut off the film bearing the message, and "fix" it in the photographic sense.

The instrument cannot lie. No mistake as to the terms of orders or figures is possible. The transmitter has his own message as he wrote it to act as a voucher. This telautograph permits of one more refinement. A wishes to communicate with B by telephone, but B is not at his office. All that A has to do is to write his message. When B returns he looks at his apparatus to see if any messages have come for him during his absence.

BABY'S VALUE.

She isn't worth a fortune, and she hasn't any stocks;
Her wealth is all in little shoes and pinafores and frocks,
In little rings of curling hair and big, blue, laughing eyes,
In leaves and grass, and buds and flowers, and bees and butterflies
But when she comes in tired from play, and crawls up on my knee,
She's worth a hundred millions to her mother and to me.
She sits among her dolls and toys, and doesn't seem to care
If wealth is all in rosy cheeks and locks and curly hair.
She toddles up to me, and, like a dainty fay, will write
A cheque drawn on love's bank with just her glances sweet and bright.
And when she puts her soft arms round my neck and coos in glee,
She's worth uncoumten millions to her mother and to me.
And when she's in her crib at night, and cosily tucked in,
The wealth of Croesus couldn't buy the dimple in her chin.
And as she blinks her roguish eyes to play at peek-a-boo,
She chuckles me a fortune with each archly-spoken coo.
And though she has no fortune, I am sure you will agree
She's a fortune, more than money, to her mother and to me.

But you all—from the Secretary of the Court to the Premier and the Czar—you indirect participators in the iniquities perpetrated every day—do not seem to feel your guilt nor the shame your participation in these horrors should evoke.

Therefore I think that, low as that unfortunate executioner has fallen, he stands morally immeasurably higher than you, participators in and part authors of those awful crimes.

TOLSTOI, TOO, FEELS GUILTY.

Everything now being done in Russia is done in the name of the general welfare, in the name of the protection and tranquility of the inhabitants of Russia. And if this be so, then it is also done for me, who live in Russia. For me, therefore, exists the destitution of the people, deprived of the first most natural right of man—the right to use the land on which he is born; for me the half million men torn away from wholesome peasant life and dressed in uniforms and taught to kill; for me that false, so-called priesthood, whose chief duty it is to pervert and conceal true Christianity; for me all these transportation of men from place to place; for me these hundreds of thousands of hungry workmen wandering about Russia; for me these hundreds of thousands of unfortunates dying of typhus and scurvy in the fortresses and prisons which do not suffice for such a multitude; for me the mothers, wives and fathers of the exiles, the prisoners and those who are hung, are suffering; for me are those spies, and this bribery; for me the interment of these dozens and hundreds of men who have been shot; for me the horrible work goes on of these hangmen, at first enlisted with difficulty, but now no longer so loathing their work; for me exist these gallows, with well-soaped cords, from which hang women, children and peasants; for me exists this terrible embitterment of man against his fellow-man.

CAN STAND IT NO LONGER.

And, being conscious of this, I can no longer endure it, but must free myself from this intolerable position!

It is impossible to live so! I, at any rate, cannot and will not live so.

That is why I write this and will circulate it by all means in my power, both in Russia and abroad; that one of two things may happen—either that these inhuman deeds may be stopped or that my connection with them may be snapped and I put in prison, where I may be clearly conscious that these horrors are not committed on my behalf; or, still better (so good that I dare not even dream of such happiness), they may put on me, as on those twenty or twelve peasants, a shroud and a cap, and push me also off a bench, so that by my own weight I may tighten the well-soaped noose around my old throat.

LIMITED.

A visiting gentleman had submitted for some time to the attentions of the three-year-old boy of his hostess, but at last grew a little tired of having his whiskers pulled and his corns trodden upon.

"And what is that?" asked the smiling mother.
"That he isn't a twin."

off, dreamed a few weeks ago of the affair. He also saw in his dream, the murder of the woman—saw the tragedy enacted, he declares, as plainly as though he had been an actual eyewitness. Waldrup was not acquainted with Jones—had never even seen him, but he was familiar with his description from hearsay, and the man he saw in his dream—the man who killed the woman—was of entirely different appearance.

WALDRIP PERSEVERED.

Waldrup was so impressed with his dream that he felt called upon to study the case. He neglected his own business and delved into the records. He interviewed the prosecuting attorney in the case. He sought the trial judge, long since retired, and begged him for assistance in freeing Jones.

"The man is not guilty—I know it—I saw another man commit the murder, saw him in my dream," Waldrup declared with earnestness.

At first Waldrup's dream was looked upon as a joke. His friends feared for his sanity. But he kept persistently at his task, and at last attracted more or less of a following. Little by little the tangled skein was unwound, and now, through the dream of Waldrup, a total stranger, the Governor of Texas and the Pardon Board have set free Convict Jones.

Bereft of the wife for whose love he sacrificed his right hand, Jones has sought seclusion on a ranch near San Antonio, where he says he shall remain.

KNOW HUSBAND'S FINANCES.

Every Wife Should Know of Husband's Financial Affairs.

A wife who is ignorant of her husband's financial affairs occupies a difficult position, says a writer. She never knows if she is justified in any expense even for her home. If her husband has not begun his new life by placing her above the humiliation of asking for money for her needs she is bound to wear herself out in dread of refusal of such requests. Each passing year increases the discomfort of her position, and if hard times descend upon them it will find her unequal to the struggle. It is not sordid in the least to discuss money matters before marriage. Money is as much a necessity as food, since it is needed for the purchase of that and every other thing we need.

An ex-bachelor says that it may not cost any more to feed two than one, but it costs ten times as much to dress them.

Among the begging letters recently received at the office of a benevolent society was one running thus:—"This unfortunate young man is the only son of a widow who died childless, and his earnings maintain his aged father and infant brothers, whose sole support he is." The secretary of the society wrote on the margin of the epistle the following note:—"The circumstances of the case are evidently exaggerated."

"The burden of the country in building the road," said Mr. Graham, "is the amount it will cost the country in interest on the money invested in the railway, being the interest for seven years of the lease, after which the Grand Trunk Pacific carries the burden itself, and Canada has no burden to bear. This interest for the first seven years will be $26,124,676. This includes interest during construction as well. Calculating interest on the shops east of Winnipeg and the terminals at Quebec for the full term, during which the guarantee is operative, the total sum is $26,859,676.

In other words, all the burden that Canada will have to bear for 1,800 miles of railroad, is $26,859,676, which could be wiped out in a year and a half with a surplus as great as that of last year.

Mr. Graham made the point that suppose this $26,859,676 was borrowed at 3 per cent, which would be a business proposition. Then for this 1,800 miles of railroad, and the benefits to be derived from it, Canada would only be burdened with $805,770 per year, or less than one million dollars.

Speaking of the mountain section and the liability of the Government to pay any interest on the guaranteed bonds, Mr. Graham launched into a burst of patriotic enthusiasm. He said: "I have faith in Canada and I am not going to suggest or admit, and I believe the circumstances will warrant me in any conclusion that this country will ever be called on to pay one cent on the guarantee of bonds on the Grand Trunk Pacific. The development of Canada is such to-day that the country is warranted in believing, and does believe, that we will never be called upon to pay one cent of guarantee on the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific. If Canada is to be a failure, if our great western country has not before it the great future we believe it has, if the industry of the people is not such as we tell the world it is, if our development is not along the lines we all hoped it should be, if our great heritage is not of the abundant wealth we have believed, if the prospects we hold out to our children about this great Canada of ours are not such as to give us confidence in it, let Mr. Borden's figures be taken as correct. But if Canada is the country we believe it is, if the people are the people we think they are, if our development is only on the threshold, and if in the years to come, we expect further development further progress, there is not the faintest chance or danger that this country will ever be called upon to pay one cent on the guarantee of bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The interest on the cost of construction of the amounts to $11,304,300, add this to the $26,859,676 mentioned above, and the result is $38,163,976. This represents the total cost to the Government for all the benefits received by the country for a through line from the Pacific ocean to Moncton. Following the same method of borrowing the money to pay the interest at 3 per cent, the country would only have to pay the sum of $1,114,919 per annum. This sum is equal to the surplus gained in the Post Office Department last year.

Therefore it is clear to any man who understands figures, that the amount Canada will have to pay to secure the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific is $38,163,976, in lump, but if this money is borrowed, all that the Government need provide is $1,114,919 a year for a few years.

Mr. Graham produced figures to show that the road being constructed was the best on the continent, having the lowest grades of any. Speaking on the subject of transportation facilities referred to the fact that the Canadian Pacific during the past few years has spent in the reconstruction and betterment of its grades and curves an amount equal to its entire original capitalization. The Grand Trunk Pacific is being constructed so that these large amounts of expenditure a few years hence will not have to be made. While the initial cost of the road is heavy, the magnificent road bed the easy grades, the easy curves, and the steel structures, with concrete foundations will enable this road to start out with a standard that some of the leading railroads of America have not yet attained and can only attain after years of running by the expenditure of millions of dollars.

The length of the Transcontinental railroad from Moncton to Winnipeg is 1,803 miles, and $63,427 a mile is $114,393,765; add interest during construction brings the cost up to $123,403,219. This does not include Moncton shops, branch line at Quebec bridge, terminals at Winnipeg. There is a vast difference between this figure and $250,000,000, which the Tory press is now wrongfully circulating as the cost from Moncton to Winnipeg. Mr. Borden meant that was the sum required to build from Moncton to the Pacific ocean, but his figures are wide of the mark.

It is given in explanation of the high cost per mile of the eastern section that there are no less than 228 bridges covering a distance of ten miles. This adds very materially to the cost of construction.

would reduce the revenue, make surpluses (which he said were iniquitous) impossible and borrow money for all public works in Canada. His argument was based on the idea that interest only should be paid on permanent improvements. Now the Conservative party criticizes the act of the Government in securing a new transcontinental railroad, which, by distinct mandate, the people ordered built in 1904 at the expense of a slight addition to the public debt.

The Conservative party tried to build the Canadian Pacific Railroad and failed. They gave away all the road already built, agreed to build what remained under contract, and give that away too, for nothing, and on top of this they placed a cash bonus of $25,000,000 of borrowed money, and as a grand climax they threw in 25,000,000 acres of land, which the company is selling at prices ranging from $8 to $15 per acre.

This was the estimate of Canada's possibilities entertained by the Conservative party in years gone by, an estimate based upon the miserable results they were able to secure by their incompetent and corrupt management of public affairs. They apply the same course of reasoning now to the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, an administration which has been the direct cause of the prosperity enjoyed by the country for the past twelve years, in consequence of an intelligent grasp of the economic problems, and an abiding faith in the future of the country as they did to their own radi-

POLITICAL NEWS!

Last week Mr. R. L. Borden made a statement in the House on the cost of the National Transcontinental Railway. He produced figures in support of a contention that the total cost would be $250,000,000.

The Conservative press eagerly grasped an opportunity to attack the Government for extravagance, and gave the figures as applying to the cost of the railway from Moncton to Winnipeg, and not from Moncton to the Pacific coast as Mr. Borden intended.

The statement of Mr. Borden was sufficiently erroneous and misleading without the Conservative press taking the matter up and giving the people to understand that this colossal sum of money would only build the road half way. Hon. Mr. Graham, Minister of Railways, denounced the unfairness of the figures given out to the country, and showed in detail that Mr. Borden's estimate of cost was too much by about $97,048,000.

Mr. Graham produced figures to show that the road being constructed was the best on the continent, having the lowest grades of any. Speaking on the subject of transportation facilities and the future requirements of the country Mr. Graham said:

"I have faith in the country. We have one transcontinental line—Some people thought when it was being constructed that it cost too much money. It has cost a lot but notwithstanding the fact that it has cost a great deal of money, we do not own any of the road. It is one of the best managed roads on this continent. I am glad to say and the business of the country has made it a dividend paying road, when the business of the country was comparatively small. But Canada has reached a new era of development, and its business will expand more and more in the years to come. I have faith that the increasing products of the Canadian people and the goods that will be purchased with these products, as well as the traffic flowing from Europe to the Orient and from the Orient to Europe and the traffic from the United States across the Dominion will in a few years reach such dimensions, that Canada will need to have another transcontinental line built by somebody.

Mr. Graham said some people thought he was too optimistic, and takes too large a view of the matter, but, said he, "no country was ever built up by pessimists. If the people who live in a country and have its destiny in their hands as members of parliament have, and have no faith in the country, they ought to get out of the country or at any rate out of parliament.

"I have faith in the Dominion of Canada," said Mr. Graham. "I have faith in its ultimate success. I have faith that it will yet possibly be a nation by itself on this continent. I believe in the resources of the country. I believe the Grand Trunk Pacific Company will never call on the Dominion of Canada to pay one cent of the guarantee of the bonds, nor one cent of the 3 per cent, interest on the cost of the railway, but that on the contrary the traffic will so crowd this great transcontinental line that in a very few years we shall be compelled to see that another transcontinental line is built from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mr. Graham gave specific details of the excellent railroad being built, he cost per mile of the eastern section that there are no less than 228 bridges covering a distance of ten miles. This adds very materially to the cost of construction.

There are now under contract on the eastern section, between Moncton and Winnipeg, 1,227 miles, and 576 miles yet to be contracted for. The sum of $18,943,690 has so far been paid to the contractors on the eastern division.

The explanation made by Hon. Mr. Graham will remove the false impression that has been created by the publication of Mr. Borden's figures that the country is committed to the sum of $250,000,000 to build the National Transcontinental. In advancing his argument Mr. Borden added this sum to the public debt of Canada, showing that it was very clearly in his mind that the people would be called upon to find this enormous sum of money.

Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, referring to Mr. Borden's figures said that he had presented to the House and the country a statement of the cost of this road to the people of Canada which was not only inexact but absolutely and monstrously misleading. He thought Mr. Borden's judgment had been blinded in his desire to make political capital. Mr. Fielding accentuated the fact that the cost to the country of the road was not the cost of construction, but only the interest for seven years on the cost of construction. The Government only pays interest even for seven years; after that the interest is paid by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company.

Mr. Fielding produced figures to prove exactly what the cost would be to the country, as follows:

Seven years' interest on eastern section	$26,124,676
Seven years' interest on guaranteed bonds for mountain section	11,304,300
Seven years' interest on the cost of terminals	1,340,150

Actual cost to Canada.....$38,769,126

Amount Mr. Borden was astray as to cost

Of course the whole idea was to make political capital out of the cost of building the Grand Trunk Pacific, and the matter was put before the people as if they had to bear the entire cost of the road, whereas they only have to bear the cost of the interest for a certain number of years, and after that the Government receives back interest on the money expended. Up to date there has been expended $30,000,000 on the railway, and the public debt has only been increased on this account by about $14,000,000.

Suppose the country had to pay double the amount to secure another transcontinental railroad across the continent, it would be cheap at the price, and Canada's public debt is only some $270,000,000, a sum equal to the revenue of the country for three years. The idea of being nervous about an addition to the public debt, when the money is put into another transcontinental railroad, is to admit complete ignorance of the resources of Canada, to be unfamiliar with the transportation conditions of the west, and to have no faith whatever in the future of Canada.

The Conservative party is the very embodiment of inconsistency. In days gone by they borrowed $60,000,000 to put into permanent improvements. They borrowed money to pay the ordinary expenses of the country, and Mr. Foster criticized the budget of the present minister of the interior, and openly advocated a fiscal policy which by the country for the past twelve years, in consequence of an intelligent grasp of the economic problems, and an abiding faith in the future of the country as they did to their own railway and dishonest ideas of Government.

The people of Canada are grateful for a Government which has guided affairs along lines of such prosperity and contentment, that another transcontinental road has become an imperative necessity to move the produce of the West.

They are grateful because, as the result of energetic immigration policy, the West has developed so that a road to Hudson Bay has become essential to the people who have settled in the new provinces, and demand for their products a quick outlet to the ocean.

They are grateful to the Liberal Government for assurances that the Georgian Bay canal, which will shorten the distance between the great lakes and the ocean will be taken in hand and constructed.

They are grateful for the expression by the House of Commons on the initiative of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the House approves of a bonus to bring about the "All Red Route," which makes of Canada the highway from Europe to the Orient and the Antipodes.

They are grateful for a Liberal Government, and will long continue it in power.

BERLIN BEER HALLS.

Where One Must Display Great Formality and Preciseness.

Berlin is organized for eating and drinking, and so are the Berliners organized for it. Scattered all over the city are enormous places where food is served, wine halls where only wines are served and beer halls which deal in beer alone, some of them most respectable and some not so impeccable. It is the rule that it is perfectly proper to take your mother or your wife or your sister to a beer hall or a wine hall that is frequented by the officers of the army. They go only to the proper ones—publicly.

The etiquette of these places is most formal. If the hall is crowded and tables are scarce, before you sit down you draw your heels together and make a military bow to everybody sitting at the table you select; then also you raise your glass or stein to those at the table when your refreshment is served.

On leaving you bow all around again, or the other people at the table bow if they leave before you do. The American way of asking the others at the table for permission to sit down is not ceremonious enough for the Germans, who are the most formally polite people in the world.—Samuel G. Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—on from a single cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures of prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Good! For this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy of known composition, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

MEXICAN POLITENESS.

In the State of Michoacan Chivalry is Compulsory.

"If any man opines that the days of chivalry and the true knight errant spirit have gone forever, let him start forthwith on a far southward journey not halt his steps until he brings up in the town of Morelia, which is the capital of the Mexican state of Michoacan," remarked a traveling man.

"Having arrived in Morelia, he will at once see that the chivalrous spirit still survives. I was down there not long ago, and the gallantry of the men and their extreme readiness to extend courtesies to the fair sex pleased and surprised me. When I noticed the alacrity with which the native males jumped up on the crowded street car to offer their seats to the first senorita that entered, I thought to myself how much more gentlemanly are these Mexicans than many of my own countrymen. They do not wait to see if some other man is going to get up, but each tries to beat the other in courteously proffering his seat to the lady.

"I spoke about the matter to the proprietor of the hotel and immediately he began to laugh.

"You must understand, senor," said the innkeeper, "that the governor of our state issued a decree that if any man keep his seat in a street car, thereby compelling a woman to stand, he is liable to arrest and a fine. The police have been instructed to execute this order severely, and I think this has much to do with the prompt politeness of which you speak, since none of our population wishes to become involved with the police and to be publicly branded as lacking in gentility."

She Had Red Burns.

The philanthropic lady was visiting a Glasgow slum and had just been ushered into a house where the good wife was engaged washing. Her endeavor was to elevate the minds of the poor, and she asked, "Have you read Burns?"

In answer the good wife bared her brawny arm and displayed a large red mark, saying: "There's wan I got this morn wi' the steam o' the pot bilin' ower. But, efter a', a burn's aye red!"

Must Have Had Experience.

"Never mind, dear," he said reassuringly as she raised her sweet face from his shoulder and they both saw the white blur on his coat; "it will all brush off."

"Oh, Charlie," she burst out, sobbing, hiding her face again upon his whitey shoulder, "how do you know?"

WON ON A BLUFF.

The Way One Prosperous Merchant Got His Start in Business.

There is a prosperous merchant in Chicago today who owes his success to his donation of a $5,000 organ to a church at a time when he didn't have money enough to buy a hand organ. This donation was a case of bluff pure and simple, but the bluff worked and resulted in the subsequent wealth of the lucky bluffer.

John Smith was seeking capital to start in business for himself, but as he had no security worth speaking of he could not borrow the money he needed.

When he had tried every person he could think of who would be likely to have the necessary cash and the inclination to lend it and had been turned down, he conceived the idea of presenting his church with an organ.

Young Napoleon John Smith there fore ordered his organ and allowed the future to look out for itself. The manufacturers of the organ never thought of questioning the financial standing of the philanthropist who was handing out $5,000 organs and agreed to have the instrument set up in the church on time.

Of course J. Smith was not a bud that was born to blush unseen, nor did he hide his beneficence under a bushel. He managed to bring in at least the flute stops no matter what the subject of conversation. Not only did the young Napoleon advertise himself by means of the church organ, but the pleased minister and the equally pleased congregation spread the news of his gift.

During this time John did not allow any alfalfa to grow under his feet. On the pretense of consulting some wealthy member of the congregation about some minor details of the organ he would drop into an office and before he left casually would mention the subject of the company that he was forming. Most of the men that he thus saw thought that it would be a good thing to be associated with a man who was making so much money that he was able to hand out $5,000 without missing it, so that all were anxious to take stock in J. Smith's company.

Long before the time came for the first payment on the organ Smith had gathered enough money to start his business and was doing so well he had no difficulty in borrowing the amount needed to make the payment. From that time he has made money so fast that now he could give away several $5,000 organs and pay for them as well.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. That tired, lifeless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a fading appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. WORKS OF JOHN YEGG

A Daring Burglar Who Attained Fame In His Line.

HIS NAME A POLICE LEGACY.

It Is Now Applied to the Most Dangerous Criminals With Whom the Officers of the Law Have to Contend. Nitroglycerin In Safe Bursting.

In the expressive slang that permeates police circles throughout the country, a "yegg" is one of the dangerous criminal class.

The question is often asked, "What is a yegg, and how did the expression originate? An answer to the latter part of the query will lead to an elucidation of the first.

Some years ago, when the United States government was experimenting with high explosives, wishing to secure some death dealing and destructive shell that would cause more damage than any before manufactured, some one suggested that nitroglycerin be tried. Up to that time this most powerful of explosives had not been utilized in this way.

The government experts went to work, and the results of their experiments were from time to time published broadcast through the community. At last they succeeded in making a shell in which nitroglycerin was the chief component part and which made all former ones sink into insignificance.

nity. At last they succeeded in making a shell in which nitroglycerin was the chief component part and which made all former ones sink into insignificance.

In a town in the middle west at the time there lived a man named John Yegg. In his earlier days he had been one of the most expert electricians as well as all round experienced mechanics in the country. Later, through drink and bad associates, he had descended to a life of crime, his principal art being that of safe blowing.

He was attracted by the published accounts of the experiments of the government authorities with nitroglycerin. The thought struck him. Why could not this be used in blowing safes?

The method at that time was to drill a hole in the safe to be wrecked, fill this with powder or dynamite and then touch the fuse. This method, however, required considerable time to pull off "a job" and was noisy and dangerous.

Yegg went to work on the nitroglycerin method. He tried it, and it was a complete success. Furthermore, after he had performed job after job he had the police of the country baffled. They did not know how the work was done. Yegg instructed others in the art, and soon from one end of the country to the other safes were being wrecked, but by what manner no one knew.

Yegg's method was to take some of the explosive which he and those with him called "soup"—and, by the way, this term is still extant—and pour it in the crack of the safe near the hinges of the door. The small aperture was then covered with soap to hold the explosive in place. The fuse was applied, and with the explosion off went the doors, slick and clean. The entire job took but a few minutes. It remained for a young Pinkerton detective to solve the matter on a safe that was blown in Coldwater, Mich., where a bank was wrecked and many thousands of dollars secured.

The crime was traced to Yegg and some of his companions, and they were found guilty and sent to prison. Thereafter those who employed the nitroglycerin instead of the older methods were called "yeggmen" or "yeggs."

This was the beginning of the term, but since that time the application of it has grown greatly. Today a "yegg," viewed from whatever aspect, is the most dangerous criminal with whom the police of the country have to deal. He is one who rides the country over on freight trains, working through the south in the winter and migrating to more exhilarating climes during the summer. He will beg when he is hungry and will steal and commit murder when he sees an opportunity of benefiting himself.

Today there are thousands of "yeggs" scattered throughout the country. Most of them belong to some certain band, each one of which has a leader. He is the king. It is his duty to enlist recruits. To him also is shipped all the loot, and he in turn converts it into money and places the amount to the credit of the member sending it in. For this the king receives a commission.

Most of the "yegg" gangs carry what is known as a "kitten" with them. The "kitten" is a boy, young man or cripple, whose duty it is to visit houses and places of business, apparently begging food or selling shoestrings, lead pencils, etc., and who then reports to the gang "the lay of the land" so that when the time comes for pulling off the job all are familiar with the premises. The "kittens" are often runaway boys and later become "yeggs" themselves, destined to follow a life of crime and degradation.

brightness. It is so far away from us that it is not displaced in position in the slightest measurable degree, as we change our position 186,000,000 miles in our annual journey around the sun. Could we be placed midway between Arcturus and our sun we would receive thousands of times more light and heat from the star than from our sun, and this notwithstanding that the star's radiation is smothered by a dense blanket of metallic vapors. In spite of its immense distance the star is drifting slowly in a southwestward direction over the face of the sky, its motion changing its apparent position by an amount equal to the diameter of the moon in the course of about 1,000 years. So great an apparent motion must indicate an enormous velocity in space.

Peppermint and Tobacco.

If you have a boy who has begun smoking too early and whom you wish to cure of the habit, feed him peppermints. Dr. O. Clayton Jones of Silvertown, England, writing in the London Lancet, is authority for this simple cure. Dr. Jones writes: "To break the smoking habit in a youth there is nothing better than peppermint drops. He cannot smoke with a 'bullseye' in his mouth, and even for some time after it is dissolved tobacco will not blend kindly with the taste that remains. Socially the cure may seem worse than the disease, but from a medical point of view the sucking of peppermints is far less hurtful. A common 'bullseye' will prevent smoking for nearly an hour, so the amount of sweets used need not be great."

His Discharge.

A touching instance of the humor which never deserts a true Irishman even in his worst troubles is recorded.

A soldier was seen in the trenches holding his hands above the earthworks. His captain asked:

"What are you doing that for, Pat?" He replied, with a grin, as he worked his fingers:

"I'm feeling for a furlough, sir." Just then a rifle ball struck his arm just below the wrist. Then a queer expression of pain and humor passed over his face as he exclaimed:

"And faith it's a discharge."—London Answers.

So There Is.

"I didn't know you intended to move."

"We don't."

"But your wife told me she was out looking at houses all day yesterday."

"Well, that's true enough, but don't you know there is a vast difference between looking 'at' houses and looking 'for' houses?"

A FAMILY MIX.

The Story as It Is Recorded on the Tombstones.

In the early part of the last century there lived in an old New England town a Mr. Church, who, in the course of his pilgrimage through this vale of tears, was bereft of four wives, all of whom were buried in the same lot. In his old age it became necessary to remove the bodies to a new cemetery. This melancholy task the much bereaved widower undertook himself, but in the process the bones of the lamented quartet became hopelessly mixed. Priding himself on possession of a New England conscience, Mr. Church would not, under the painful circumstances, permit the use of the original headstones, but procured new ones, one of which bore the following inscription: "Here lies Hannah Church and probably a portion of Emily." Another: "Sacred to the memory of Emily Church, who seems to be mixed with Matilda." Then followed these lines:

Stranger, pause and drop a tear,
For Emily Church lies buried here,
Mixed in some perplexing manner
With Mary, Matilda and probably Hannah.

THE FISH IN HIS BED.

Funny Climax to an Angling Experience of General Gallifet.

Long ago, in the days of the second empire, General Gallifet was the aide-camp of Napoleon III. At St. Cloud his quarters were just over the imperial bedroom. Everything around him was very grand and very gloomy. The window of his room looked upon the pond that washed the walls of the chateau. The water was clear and the surrounding scenery was beautiful, but the young lieutenant felt like a prisoner. Early one morning, while seated at his window trying to drive away the blues with a cigar, he espied below in the crystal water an enormous carp. The instinct of the soldier, strong in Gallifet, made the young man's eyes snap and set his heart throbbing.

The big fish was the private property of the emperor. Consequently for Gallifet it was forbidden fish. But it was such a fine fellow! The resistance of the soldier's conscience was useless. It surrendered unconditionally. The remaining part of the campaign against the carp was simple enough. Gallifet went to his trunk, brought out his trusty line, to which he fastened a hook and an artificial bait. With his accustomed skill he cast his line. The carp was hooked and hauled in through the window.

Here the lieutenant's fun ended and his trouble began. The fish, landed upon a table, overturned a large globe filled with water and caromed from that to a magnificent vase, which it also upset and smashed to pieces upon the floor. Then it began to execute a genuine pas de carpe among the smithereens.

The emperor, hearing the strange racket overhead and seeing the water trickling through the ceiling, was astonished. He rushed upstairs to find out what was the matter. Gallifet heard him coming and endeavored to grab the carp and throw it out of the window and thus destroy the evidence of his poaching in the imperial pond. But the slippery thing was hard to hold, so he tossed it into a bed and covered it up with the bedclothes. When the emperor entered the room, he noticed immediately the quivering bedclothes. He pulled them down and uncovered the floundering fish. His majesty's face assumed an almost jammie expression, which gradually faded into a faint smile. He took in the entire situation, saluted and left the future war minister to meditate upon the myst-ries of a fisherman's luck.

The Wrong Bird.

One of the well known magicians not along ago had a queer experience, but the people in the theater had more fun out of it than he did. One of his tricks was to shake a sack to show that it was empty and then to draw out of it an egg, after which he would always reach in again and bring out the hen that laid the egg. Of course he had to have help in this, and one night he had a new man who did everything just as he had been told until it came to this act. Reaching into the bag, he drew forth the fowl at the usual time, but instead of the hen an old rooster hopped down on to the stage, ruffled its feathers and strutted around, crowing with all its might, while the audience laughed and the magician went out to hunt his new helper.—London Opinion.

THE FOREHEAD.

What Its Size and Shape Are Said to Indicate.

A high forehead to be very good should be well developed about the eyebrows.

Breadth of forehead is always favorable. It is distinctly connected with breadth of character.

A forehead that curves back reveals a poetic temperament, a fondness for the arts and a talent for either music or painting.

Of course a broad forehead may be part of a weak face, and a weak chin and mouth will naturally give a truer impression of character than even a combination of a narrow forehead with an otherwise strong face.

If there is quite a perceptible bulge of the eyebrows, combined with a high forehead, the sign is of a calm, cool, deliberate thinker.

If with these eyebrows is combined a forehead that slopes gradually back, a sensitive, poetic temperament is disclosed. If, again, they are combined with a short, narrow forehead, the subject will be successful in business and in everything connected with worldly matters, but he will be incapable of appreciating to any extent or of creating anything connected with the arts.

SAW IT IN A DREAM.

A Lost Check and the Peculiar Way It Was Found.

A wealthy New York lawyer sat up late one night writing letters he had not been able to finish during the day. It was past midnight when he went out to mail them, and when he returned and was undressing he paused in dismay, missing a check for a large sum received during the day and taken home with him. In vain was the house ransacked at that late hour. He went to bed convinced that the lost check must be in the house. An hour later he fell into uneasy slumber and beheld as with his eyes of the flesh the pink check curled about an area railing four or five doors from his own house.

So real was the dream that the troubled man woke up, dressed and, slipping down the stairs into the street, walked along the sidewalk to a spot still seen vividly in his mind, and there, sure enough, standing edge upward and partly curled about the iron, was the missing check. "I think," he reported to the Psychological Research society, "my subconsciousness must have noticed it fall from my pocket as I walked to the mail box and my subliminal self pealed it out to me in sleep."—William G. Fitz-Gerald in New York Tribune.

The Dogs of Constantinople.

There are at least 235,000 dogs in Constantinople, which has a population of 1,150,000. They are the vilest of cowards and are the scavengers of the city. It is said that scores of people are bitten daily by the dogs of Constantinople, but that a case of hydrophobia was never known there. Three centuries ago Nassuf Pasha, grand vizier to Achmet III., transported all the dogs to Asia and would have had them destroyed there, but the sultan, on consulting the mufti, was told that every dog had a soul and consequently forbade such wholesale destruction. After the slaughter of the janizaries Mahi had intended to get rid of them, for he caused an immense number of sausages to be made and, having poisoned them, gave the dogs a feast. Many thousands were thus killed in one day, but the people murmured so much that he was afraid to begin a second day's work. He therefore order-

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. LOVE, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles their roots, without restoring to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. MOORE, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the Evans Vacuum Cap is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the Evans Vacuum Cap will be sent, post free, on application.

Origin of Boston's Glory.

Even as early as the days of Henry VIII. some sort of volunteer force had existed in England, and what is now the Honorable Artillery Company was formed at that time and became a center of instruction for the city trained bands during the time of Cromwell. The Honorable Artillery Company may be counted among the things which crossed in the Mayflower, for in 1633 was formed the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.—London News.

To Think About.

"She seems like a very nice girl."
"One whom it would be safe to marry?"
"Oh, no. No girl is safe enough for that. But she's nice enough to think about marrying if you only know when to stop."

posioned them, gave the dogs a feast. Many thousands were thus killed in one day, but the people murmured so much that he was afraid to begin a second day's work. He therefore ordered them to be expelled to Asia, but the order was very indifferently executed, and in a short time the dogs were as numerous as during the time of the janizaries.

The Dog Morland Painted.

Of the many stories of the seemingly unconscious heroism of Newfoundland dogs none is more interesting than the one concerning the noble dog which Morland afterward painted.

When William Phillips, bathing at Portsmouth, ventured beyond his depth and was drowning, two boatmen, instead of setting out to his rescue, haggled about a reward from the bystanders, who were urging them to go to Phillips' rescue. In the midst of the controversy a Newfoundland dog leaped into the water and brought the exhausted bather to shore. Mr. Phillips bought the dog from its owner, a butcher, and yearly gave a festival in honor of his rescuer.

It was for Mr. Phillips that Morland painted the dog's picture, and Bartolozzi engraved it.

A Dream Warning.

A strange story comes from Calabria. One Braccala, a resident of Pizzo, had a dream in which he saw his son, twenty years of age, being attacked by two men, who were stabbing him with knives. Braccala awoke and, arousing his wife, told her what he had seen. She tried to calm him, but while they were still discussing the matter a noise was heard in front of the house, and, hastening down, Mme. Braccala opened the door just in time to catch her son in her arms as he fell swooning to the ground. He had been attacked and stabbed and died shortly afterward.

Why, Indeed?

The five-year-old son was asking his father some severe questions about a recent addition to the family.

"That baby likes ma," said the youngster sharply.

"Oh, yes, he likes your ma," said his father, "but he likes me too."

Thereupon the five-year-old from whom great things were expected exclaimed:

"Likes you? Then why does he cry when he looks at you?"

Necessity the Mother.

"Who got up those hanging gardens of Babylon?"

"Some king."

"For what purpose?"

"I judge he wanted to outwit the neighbors' chickens."

Always Tired.

Political Candidate—Which way do the farm hands lean around here? Farmer Ryetop—Well, stranger, around plowing and planting time you will see them leaning against the barn or fence every time your back is turned.

Expensive.

"I should never have thought that studying would have cost so much money."

"Yes, father, and if you only knew how little I have studied!"—Judge.

Everything unknown is taken for magnificent—Greek Proverb.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

A SERPENT STORY.

Terrifying Experience With a Deadly Lancehead.

The Paris Eclair tells a blood curdling serpent story, the scene of which was the island of Martinique and the dramatis personae Sergeant Legrand and Private Durand and the snake a deadly lancehead.

The soldier had been punished with a night in the cells for some trivial offense, but as the night was very hot the sergeant had left the door open. In the morning at 5 o'clock Legrand went to wake his prisoner and, to his horror, beheld a lancehead snake coiled up and fast asleep on the man's breast.

The sergeant did not lose his presence of mind. He stole noiselessly away, ran to the guard room and, followed by all the men on duty, returned to the cell with a bowl of milk and a tin whistle. Placing the bowl of milk at the entrance to the cell, the sergeant began to play the "Blue Danube." It is needless to remark that the weakness of the lancehead is milk and music. The serpent, which was a six foot specimen, awoke, glided from the soldier's body toward the bowl, but it had no sooner buried its head in its beloved drink than ten cudgels descended on it with terrific force, killing it outright.

The soldier Durand, who was in a swoon, was taken to hospital, where he lay for many days on the verge of madness. He finally recovered and related his horrible experience—how he had awoke in the middle of the night as the serpent was coiling itself on his bare breast and how he had lain there in an agony for hours, not daring to move a muscle.

Durand was sent back to France as soon as he had sufficiently recovered. The only trace of his terrible experience, adds the Eclair, is that his hair is now snow white.

Love's Young Dream.

Another case of the bad boy rudely interrupting love's young dream. A Maltese girl and her Romeo sat in close proximity on the couch in the drawing room lost to the world. They were brought back from Eden by her little brother, who, like many of his kind, makes it a practice to butt in at the wrong time. He walked into the room, planted himself in front of the young man and asked:

"Was you ever tied to a fish line?"
"I certainly was not," was the reply.
"Well," responded the boy, "I heard pa tell ma last night that you'd make a good sinker."

As to Quotations.

How many persons can unhesitatingly name the source of the familiar quotations? Many a man goes through life without reading a single play of Shakespeare, but probably no English speaking man goes through life without quoting him. If he sneers at "a woman's reason," he quotes Shakespeare; if he refers to "a trick worth two of that," he quotes Shakespeare again.

Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" is not a popular work, but one line of it—"Ask me no questions, and I will tell you no lies"—is known and used by everybody.

Made Him a Songster.

Mr. Stubb (in astonishment)—Gracious, Maria! That tramp has been singing in the back yard for the last hour. Mrs. Stubb—Yes, John, it is all my fault. Mr. Stubb—Your fault? Mrs. Stubb—Indeed it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I boiled up the bird seed by mistake.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS.

At Ste. Emelie, Que., in June, 142 cows gave an average yield of 546 lb. milk, 3.8 test, 20.8 lb. fat. The best herd average was 681 lb. milk, 3.8 test, 24.3 lb. fat. The highest yield of any one cow was 1090 lb. milk testing 3.5. The poorest herd was one of 13 cows that averaged only 392 lb. milk and 16 lb. fat. If the 13 cows in this herd had given only enough milk extra to bring them up to the average yield of all the 142 cows in the association they would have given enough milk in the month to make an extra 182 lbs. of cheese worth $20.00. That would not be much improvement to ask just to bring them up to the average, not the best herd: and if the cows are such that they cannot be made to yield an average quantity, should they be kept?

At Warsaw, Ont., in June, 118 cows gave an average yield of 929 lb. milk, 3.2 test, 29.9 lb. fat. The best herd average was 1042 lb. milk, 32.3 lb. fat from a herd of 26 lbs. This association record is in rather sharp contrast to the one above, and indicates the great differences that exist between the results obtained in different sections of the country. Stated in another form, if the Ste. Emelie cows were as good milkers as those at Warsaw, they would have given an extra weight of 54,340 pounds during the month.

It Makes Us Weary.

Exchange.

We know some people who frequently remark that "it must be lovely to be a newspaper man." Well it is all a mistake. In addition to the working twenty-two hours out of the usual twenty-four, the newspaper man has to answer the following questions, not occasionally, but each and every day of his life:

How do you ever manage to get enough news to fill the paper every week?

Do you get in free to everything? Do you put your own headlines on your articles?

Who writes all the editorials? How did you ever come to start working on a newspaper?

Newspaper men all drink a lot, don't they?

Do you have to go to all the fires at night?

Who corrects your articles before they are put in the paper?

Do you just go around and pick up any news you can get?

What does the city editor do? Is he nice?

Do you ever write any stories or plays or things?

Did you ever try?

Why don't you get something else to do?

Wouldn't that make you weary of existence?

FOODS OF ITALY.

Specialties of the Friggitrice in Naples and Genoa.

Huge meaty chestnuts are found everywhere in Italy. Peeled and boiled in a reddish broth seasoned with laurel leaves and caraway seeds, the nuts are palatable. About two dozen of the large kernels are sold for a penny. In both Genoa and Naples the friggitrice are interesting, and some of their specialties are well worth a trial if one can forget the unappetizing appearance of cooks and cooking appliances. One friggitrice attracts attention to a tray of golden balls which she piles in a pyramid. The golden balls are artichokes. They are boiled in salted water until tender and are put in a pan

MORVEN.

July 21.—The recent showers will be very helpful to the late growing crops.

Cutting hay is the order of the day. Morven Sabbath school had a day's outing to Twelve O'clock Point on the 14th of July.

M. Smith has returned from his daughter's, Mrs. German Vallean, Oso, somewhat improved in health.

G. Clapper has returned home, accompanied by his two nieces from Orillia.

Miss Davis, Adolphustown, spent the Sabbath with her brother, W. W. Davis.

MILLHAVEN.

July 22.—Mrs. A. Goodearle and party, of Kingston, are camping in this place.

Mrs. Chimery and son, Percy, of Watertown, and Mrs. Simons, of Peterboro, are visiting at John Clement's.

Miss Bata, York, is spending her vacation with Mrs. C. Collins.

Mrs. H. Amey is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. J. Sharp, Bath.

Mr. and Mrs. Guess, Sydenham, and Mrs. Cadenhead, Kingston, are the guests of Mrs. J. Fairfield.

Miss Myrtle Collins was successful in passing her entrance examination.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin and B. Franklin and wife are back at Mountain Grove picking huckleberries.

Miss Milligan, Kingston, and the Misses Milligan, Toronto, are visiting their grandfather, Samuel Milligan.

LAPUM.

July 21.—Arnold Brown made a business trip to Ernesttown Station on Saturday.

John Brown visited, on Sunday, his brother, William, in the general hospital, Kingston.

Miss Hazel Joyner has returned from visiting friends at Sydenham.

Stanley Bush and Harold Huff were successful in passing the entrance examinations at Newburgh.

Mrs. J. A. Bell and four small boys, of Emo, are visiting at B. Rose's.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lapum and daughter, Eno, spent Sunday at Gretna.

WHICH WAS RIGHT?

See if You Can Untangle the Knots in This Problem.

A young man named Emathius desired to learn eloquence and art of pleading, and he bargained with Protagoras, the ancient Greek sophist, for instructions, agreeing to pay one half of the fee down and the other half on the first day he gained a case. It took the young man so long to learn that his tutor came to the conclusion that he was delaying his start in business to avoid paying the other half of the fee, so Protagoras sued him for the money.

When the case came up for trial Protagoras said to the young man: "You act most absurdly, young man, because in either case you must pay me. If the judges decide against you, you must pay, and if they decide for you you must pay, for you will then have gained your case."

"You are wrong," replied the young man. "I will win either way. If the judges are for me, I will not have to pay, and if they are against me I will not have to pay, for this last was the very bargain between us—namely, if I did not win my case."

Mrs. William Henderson.

A SERIOUS ILLNESS

RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MRS. WILLIAM HENDERSON, Craik, N. W. T., Can., writes:

"I was troubled with very serious internal weakness, which exhausted me so that I feared I would lose my mind.

"I suffered agony with my back, the pain extending down my left leg. The pain was so severe that I would have welcomed death as a relief.

"Peruna cured me of this trouble,—no wonder I recommend it so highly.

"It will soon be two years since I found relief from the pain and not a sign of it has returned.

"I am glad that there is a way in which I can speak of this, as many a sufferer may read my testimonial, and not only read, but believe."

Had Given Up All Hope.

Mlle. Albina Chauvin, No. 50 Rue Agnes, St. Henri, Montreal, Canada, writes:

"I consider Peruna better than any other remedy, as it cured me when nothing else could.

"I suffered for years and years with heart trouble, headaches and weakness. I never expected to find anything to cure me.

"I tried Peruna and am entirely cured."

IRVING AND MONTAGUE.

One of Their Practical Jokes That Scared Their Friends.

In Scott's "The Drama of Yesterday and Today" the author tells of a practical joke played by Henry Irving and Harry Montague upon a number of their friends, and "in its execution was seen the first dawning glimmer of that tragic force that was ultimately to find expression in Hood's 'Dream of Eugene Aram' and 'The Bells.'" Irving and Montague, hitherto the best allies, began to quarrel on their way to a picnic, and their friends feared some tragic consequences. After luncheon both of the men disappeared.

Smale's face turned deadly pale. He felt that his worst fears were being realized. With one wild cry, "They're gone—what on earth has become of them?" he made a dash down the Dargle over the rocks and boulders, with the remainder of the picnic party at his heels.

At the bottom of a "dreadful hollow behind the little wood" a fearful sight presented itself to the astonished friends. There on a stone sat Henry Irving in his shirt sleeves, his long hair matted over his eyes, his thin hands singing in the back yard for the first hour. Mrs. Stubb—Yes, John, it is all my fault. Mr. Stubb—Your fault? Mrs. Stubb—Indeed it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I boiled up the bird seed by mistake.

Had Experience.

Not long ago there entered the office of the superintendent of a trolley line in Detroit an angry citizen demanding justice in no uncertain terms.

In response to the official's gentle inquiry touching the cause of the demand the angry citizen explained that on the day previous as his wife was boarding one of the company's cars the conductor thereof had stepped on his spouse's dress, tearing from it more than a yard of material.

"I can't see that we are to blame for that," protested the superintendent. "What do you expect us to do—get her a new dress?"

"No, sir, I do not," rejoined the angry citizen, brandishing a piece of cloth. "What I propose is that you people shall match this material."

HE SOUGHT DEATH.

The Unfortunate Napoleon III. at the Battle of Sedan.

Sarah Bernhardt mentions in her memoirs that Napoleon III. had two horses shot under him at Sedan. Some having thrown doubt on her statement and denied that the emperor was ever in personal danger at the time, Baron Verly, son of the late colonel of the Cent Gardes, gives what he affirms to be the authentic account of the unhappy sovereign's persistent attempts to court death when he saw that defeat was unavoidable. On Sept. 1, 1870, at 6 o'clock in the morning, Marshal MacMahon, returning wounded to Sedan, met the emperor riding out to Bazelles. Napoleon III. realized that the situation was desperate. He rode slowly out, depressed and thoughtful, under a hail of shot. During an hour he inspected the positions. Bullets rained on his escort. Captain d'Heudecourt was killed a few feet away from the emperor. The latter, deliberately seeking death, alighted, ordered his escort to remain behind an embankment and walked up to a cemetery on a height, where he stayed for another hour, exposed to fire. He mounted again and rode to another part of the field. General de Courson and Captain de Treceillon were dangerously wounded by his side, but not a bullet hit him. The emperor at last seemed to despair of meeting his death as he sought it and rode back to Sedan at noon. In the town itself shells fell thick, and while the emperor was riding with his escort up the Grand Rue one burst just in front of him, wounded one of the Cent Gardes and killed the horses of two aids-de-camp. Napoleon III. looked on stolidly, understanding, perhaps, that it was not his fate to die in action. The story that he had two horses killed under him is, therefore, not correct. But there is no doubt that the unfortunate emperor, beaten and ill, a pathetic and tragic figure, did deliberately seek death on the field to escape the disgrace of Sedan which he foresaw.—Paris Letter.

Why He Fretted.

Amateur Sportsman (after shooting his best friend)—Too bad, too bad! But I thought you were a deer. The Victim—Don't fret. Amateur Sportsman—Don't fret! Why, man, I promised my wife a pair of horns.

What's the Use?

"Ought we not to do something more for the preservation of our forests?" "Oh, what's the use?" answered Senator Sorghum impatiently. "Trees can't vote."

can forget the unappetizing appearance of cooks and cooking appliances. One friggatrice attracts attention to a tray of golden balls which she piles in a pyramid. The golden balls are artichokes. They are boiled in salted water until tender and are put in a pan over steam to keep them hot until a customer appears. For threepence the vender will take one from the steaming pan, dry it, dip it into batter and pop it into the hot oil. A moment later a golden brown ball, delicious and crispy on the outside and tender and succulent on the inside, is handed to the purchaser. The frying is managed in such a way that when the fritters are taken from the kettle they are very hot, but so dry on the outside that they scarcely soil the fingers when eaten from the hand. Another friggatrice specialty is that of cheese balls. They are made of paste filled with grated cheese and fried. Mashed chestnuts, rice, chopped chicken and many vegetables are used to vary the fillings for the popular fritos. Some of the frying kettles are portable, and the friggatrice have regular routes like the milkmen, where they tap at the basement door, get their orders, take their tiny bellows and blow up the charcoal until it glows and then cook the breakfast of meat balls or rice cakes or artichokes, which are sent in hot.

Solenodons.

Only two species of that singular insectivorous mammal, the solenodon, are known, one inhabiting Haiti and the other Cuba. They differ chiefly in the color and quality of their fur. Solenodons are quaint looking animals, rather larger than rats, with long flexible snouts and naked tails. They are nocturnal and obtain their food by digging in the soft ground for insects, etc., with their snouts. Their brain capacity is small, and they are said to have the curious habit when hunted by dogs of hiding their heads in the nearest holes and leaving their bodies exposed.

The Clock Was Wrecked.

Biway—Use an alarm clock nowadays? Jigsaw—No; never tried one but once. Biway—How was that? Jigsaw—Well, you see, the first time it went off I didn't exactly know what it was, and so I said, "Oh, for heaven's sake, Maria, shut up!" Maria happened to be awake, and—well, that is how it was.—Liverpool Mercury.

Chivalrous Chicago.

In Chicago more than in any other place is woman regarded in the light of a thing of beauty and a joy forever. There is hardly a man in Chicago who does not esteem feminine loveliness as something beyond price—something to live for, to strive for, to suffer for and if necessary to die for.

A Historical Mystery Solved.

Her Protector.

"Well, sir," explained young Mr. Sootherbs, "it was like this: I thought my wife might be afraid of traps, so I bought her a watchdog. He was a fierce looking bull, and I reckoned he'd about fill the bill. I got him in the morning and had him sent right out to the house. When I got home that night one of the toughest looking hobbos you ever saw was sitting on the porch. 'What in thunder are you doing here?' I asked. 'Well, boss,' says he, 'I come lookin' fer a handout, an' de lady she gimme 50 cents to stick around an' perfect her from dat dog o' yours. She's sure scared of 'im.'" gained your case."

"You are wrong," replied the young man. "I will win either way. If the judges are for me, I will not have to pay, and if they are against me I will not have to pay, for this last was the very bargain between us—namely, if I did not win my case."

The judges considered the case inexplicable, and as they could not see their way to any decision they adjourned the case to a day that never came for any of the principals. On Protagoras' side it was a case of losing when he won and on the young student's side winning when he lost.

ANIMALS. AMBIDEXTROUS.

Right handedness and right eyedness came with genus homo. Dr. George M. Gould has watched for them in squirrels that use their front paws to hold nuts, cats that strike at insects in the air or play with wounded mice and in many other animals, but he is certain no preference is given to the right side over the left.

But in the lowest human savages all over the world choice in greater expertness of one hand is clearly present. One cause for its development is in primitive military customs. In all tribes and countries since man used implements of offense and defense the left side, where the heart lies, has been protected by the shield, and the left hand was called the shield hand, while the right hand was called the spear hand.

Next to fighting came commerce. The fundamental condition of bartering was counting with the low numbers, one to ten. The fingers of the free or right hand were naturally first used, and all fingers today are called digits, as are the figures themselves, while the basis of our numbering is the decimal or ten fingered system. Every drill and action of the soldier from ancient Greece to modern America is right sided in every detail. Firing from the right shoulder and sighting with the right eye bring the right eye into prominence.—Exchange.

the remainder of the picnic party at his heels.

At the bottom of a "dreadful hollow behind the little wood" a fearful sight presented itself to the astonished friends. There on a stone sat Henry Irving in his shirt sleeves, his long hair matted over his eyes, his thin hands and white face all smeared with blood, and dangling an open clasp knife.

He was, muttering to himself in a savage tone: "I've done it! I've done it! I said I would! I said I would!"

Tom Smale in an agony of fear rushed up to Irving, who waved him on one side with threatening gestures. "For God's sake, man," screamed the distracted Smale, "tell us where he is!" Irving, scarcely moving a muscle, pointed to a heap of dead leaves and in sepulchral tones cried: "He's there—there! I've done for him! I've murdered him!"

Smale literally bounded to the heap and began flinging aside the leaves in every direction. Presently he found the body of Harry Montague lying face downward. Almost paralyzed with fear, Smale just managed to turn the head around and found Montague convulsed with laughter, with a pocket handkerchief in his mouth to prevent an explosion. Never was better acting seen on any stage.

Cupid's Hearty Appetite.

"You know," said the soulful youth, "music is the food of love!"

"Nonsense!" replied the practical fellow. "My love prefers lobster salad, terrapin and other expensive fodder."

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope, but I treated it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all the wanted surgery money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Dr. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got Tim N. Kennedy's treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I earn $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

OR, THE GIRL IN BLUE

CHAPTER XIX.

"My dear Wilford!" exclaimed the thin-faced, angular woman, "I really think you must have taken leave of your senses."

"My dear madam," I cried excitedly, "I haven't the slightest notion of your name. To the best of my knowledge, I've never had the pleasure of meeting you before this moment. Yet you have the boldness to assert that you are my wife! The thing is absolutely preposterous!" I laughed cynically.

"You must be mad to talk like this!" the woman answered with some asperity.

"I tell you that I'm not mad, madam," I protested, "and further, I declare that I have never married."

"What rubbish you talk!" she said. "This accident to your head has evidently affected your intellect. You must rest, as Doctor Britten has ordered."

"The doddering old idiot thinks, like yourself, that I'm not quite responsible for my actions," I laughed. "Well, we shall see."

"If you were in your right senses you would never deny that I am your wife," answered the over-dressed woman. "The thing's too absurd."

"My dear madam," I cried, growing angry, "your allegations are utterly ridiculous, to say the least. All this is either some confounded conspiracy, or else you mistake me for somebody else. I tell you that I am Wilford Henton, of Essex Street, Strand, a bachelor who has neither thought nor inclination of marrying."

"And I tell you that you are Wilford Henton, my husband, and owner of this house," she answered, her face growing redder with excitement.

The situation was certainly stranger than any other in which a man could possibly be placed. That it was no dream, but a stern reality, was entirely plain. I glanced around the comfortable library, and saw there evidences of wealth and refinement, while through the window beyond my gaze fell upon the wide park sloping away to a large lake glistening in the sunshine, and through the trees beyond could be seen a distant glimpse of the blue waters of the English Channel.

I stood utterly nonplussed by the startling declaration of this artificial-looking person, who aped youth so ridiculously, and yet spoke with such an air of confidence and determination.

"And you actually expect me to believe this absurd story of yours, that I am your husband, when only last night I dined at The Boltons, and was then a bachelor? Besides, madam," I added with a touch of sarcasm, for I confess that my anger was now thoroughly aroused, "I think the—well, the difference in our ages is sufficient to convince any one that—"

"No, no," she hastened to interrupt me, as though that point were very distasteful to her. "Age is entirely out of the question. Am I to understand that you distinctly deny having made me your wife?"

"I do, most decidedly," I laughed, for the very idea was really too ridiculous to entertain.

She exchanged a pitying look with Gedge, who stood at a little distance, watching in silence.

"Poor Wilford! poor Wilford!" she ejaculated in a tone of sympathy, and ness as a financier in the City of London?"

"I know nothing of finance," I answered. "This Mr. Gedge—or whatever his name is—has told me some absurd fairy-tale about my position in London, but knowing myself, as I do, to be an ardent duffer at figures, I'm quite positive that the story is all bunkum."

"Then how do you account for these memorandum forms," inquired Gedge, taking some from the table, "and for these letters? Are they not in your hand-writing?"

I glanced at the letters he held. They referred to some huge financial transaction, and were certainly in a hand that appeared wonderfully like my own.

"Some one has been imposing upon you, I tell you. This is a case of mistaken identity—it must be, my dear sir."

"But I tell you it isn't," protested Gedge. "All that your wife has said is the absolute truth."

"My wife!" I cried angrily. "I have no wife—thank Heaven!"

"No, no," whined the painted old woman, dabbing her eyes with her handkerchief, very lightly, however, so as not to disturb their artificiality. "No, don't say that, my dear Wilford, don't say that! You know that you are my husband—you know you are!"

"I know, my dear madam, quite well that I do not occupy that distinguished position," I responded very firmly.

"But I can prove it—I can prove it!" she cried with a futile effort at tears.

"Then I shall be most interested to see this extraordinary fiction proved," I said. "Perhaps we shall then get down to facts."

"The facts are as, already stated," Gedge remarked.

"Then let me see proof. There must be a certificate or official entry somewhere if what this lady says is really correct. Where is it?"

"My certificate was stolen when my jewel-case was rifled in the train between Waterloo and Exeter," she answered. "But, of course, a copy can easily be obtained. Your solicitor in London can get a copy at once from Somerset House."

"Certificate stolen!" I cried. "A most ingenious excuse. I quite anticipated it, although it, unfortunately, exhibits no originality. Thieves don't usually steal marriage certificates. They can't pawn them, you know."

The woman before me glanced around the room with an air of bewilderment, and I then knew that I had cornered her.

"And where did this extraordinary marriage between us take place, pray?" I inquired, not without some bitter irony.

"At St. Andrew's, Wells Street," "Wells Street, in London?"

"Yes. You surely remember it, don't you? The church is close by Oxford Circus."

"I know the church quite well," I answered. "But I most firmly and distinctly deny ever having been inside it in my life."

For there you'll find your signature, together with that of your wife," Gedge observed, with a confidence that rather surprised me.

"I shall certainly take no trouble in such a matter," I declared. "It is alleged that I am the husband of this lady, therefore it is for her to bring proof—"

you again, my dear madam, until—until I know the worst."

"What have I done, Wilford, that you should treat me thus?" she wailed bitterly, bursting into a torrent of tears. "Oh, what have I done? Tell me."

"I don't know what you've done, and I'm sure I'm not interested in it," I responded. "All I know is that when you declare that you are my wife you tell a deliberate and downright lie."

For a moment she stood in hesitation, then, with tears flowing fast, she covered her face with her hands and staggered from the room.

Was she only acting the broken-hearted wife, or was that emotion real. Which, I could not decide.

If all this were part of some conspiracy, it was certainly one of no ordinary character. But what a confounded old hag the woman was! I shuddered. Surely she could not be my wife! The suggestion was too utterly preposterous to be entertained for a single moment, and within myself I laughed her allegation to scorn.

"Poor Wilford! poor Wilford!" she ejaculated in a tone of sympathy, and, addressing the man who called himself my secretary, said, "It seems quite true what the doctor has declared; the blow has upset the balance of his mind."

"Madam," I cried very determinedly, "you will oblige me by not adding further insult to your attempted imposture—for such sympathy is insulting to me."

She clasped her hands, turned her eyes upward, and sighed in the manner of the elderly.

"You believe that I'm mad. Therefore you are trying to impose upon me!" I went on furiously. "But I tell you, my dear madam, that I am just as sane as yourself, and am fully prepared to prove that I am not your husband."

"Ask Mr. Gedge whether I speak the truth or not," she said, turning to the secretary.

"Certainly," answered the man addressed, looking straight into my face. "I have no hesitation whatever in bearing out Mrs. Heaton's statement."

"It's all humbug!" I cried, turning savagely upon him. "I don't know this woman from Adam!"

"Well," he laughed cynically, "you ought to know her pretty well, at any rate."

It was apparent from his tone that he had no very high opinion of her.

"I'm pleased to say that until this present moment we have been strangers," I said, for I was not in a humor to mince words.

"You are extremely complimentary, Wilford," she observed resentfully.

"It appears to me that compliments are entirely unnecessary in this affair," I said. "You are endeavoring to thrust yourself upon me as my wife, in order, I suppose, to achieve some object you have in view. But I tell you once and for all, madam, that any such attempt will be futile. To speak plainly, I don't know you, neither have I any desire to add you to my list of acquaintances."

"Well," she cried, "of all the stories I've ever heard, this is the most extraordinary!"

"I think, madam, I may say the same," I remarked coolly. "Your story is the wildest and most incredible I've ever heard. Last night, as a bachelor, I dined with friends in Kensington, and at about a late hour, ending at a house in a quiet way home to Essex Street. To-day I awake to be told that I am the owner of wealth beyond the dreams of avarice; master of this house in Devonshire, I believe, and of your lawful husband. Now, if you think me capable of swallowing such a pack of impossible lies as these, you must certainly consider me absolutely insane. For me, but a madman would give credence to such a tissue of lies."

"Doctor Britten considers that your brain is unbalanced, because you do not know the truth," she said calmly. "I quite agree with him."

"He's a fool—a drivelling idiot," I cried, forgetting myself in the heat of the moment, and using an unwelcome word. Mention of that pattering old fellow's name was to me as a red flag to a bull. "I surely know who and what I am!" I cried.

"No, my dear Wilford, that's just it. You don't know who you are," the woman answered with a smile.

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "Then perhaps you'll kindly inform me. All this may be very amusing to you, but I assure you that to me it's the very reverse."

"I can only tell you who you are as I know you to be," answered the powdered, red-faced, doll-like old lady, whose attempts at juvenile coquetry sickened me. "Go on," I said, preparing myself for more attempts to belab me.

"I ask you first whether you are not Wilford Heaton, of Heaton Manor, near Tewkesbury?"

"Certainly."

"And you were once stricken by blindness?"

"That is so unfortunately."

"And you are now carrying on business there you'll find your signature, to—If you examine the marriage register together with that of your wife, Gedge observed, with a confidence that rather surprised me.

"I shall certainly take no trouble in such a matter," I declared. "It is alleged that I am the husband of this lady, therefore it is for her to bring proof—not for me to seek it."

"Very well, then," cried the woman who called herself Mrs. Heaton. "Within three days a copy of the certificate shall be placed in your hands."

"I'm not very partial to copies of documents," I observed, very dubiously. "I always prefer originals."

"The original is, unfortunately, lost," "Stolen, or strayed away of its own accord—eh?" I added with a doubtful laugh.

"Are you content to wait until the certificate can be obtained from Somerset House?" she inquired.

"No," I responded. "If you are actually my wife as you allege, madam, perhaps you will kindly explain the mystery of my presence here, in a house that until an hour ago I had never seen in all my life."

The woman and the secretary again exchanged glances. I saw they considered me an utterly irresponsible agent. They believed me to be demented.

"None of us can explain it," Gedge answered. "There is some mystery, but what it is we can't yet fathom."

"Mystery!" I echoed. "I should think there was some mystery—and I devilishly complicated it must be, too, when I find myself in this amazing position. Why, it's sufficient to turn the brain of any man to be told of one's marriage to a woman who has never set eyes upon before, and—well, old enough to be his own mother!"

"Hush, hush!" said the secretary, who apparently wished to avoid a scene. He evidently knew that this angular woman, notwithstanding her affected juvenility, possessed a fiendish temper. I had detected it by the keen look in her eyes and the twitchings of her thin, hard lips.

"If in my own house," I cried wrathfully, "I am surely permitted to say what I like. Am I master here, or no?"

"Certainly you are, sir," he responded, instantly humbled.

"Then listen," I said. "Until the arrival of the certificate from London I have no wish to meet this lady who alleges that she is my wife."

Then, turning to her, I made her a mock bow, adding ironically—

"I think, madam, that it will avoid any further words of a disagreeable nature if we remain apart for the present."

"Certainly, Wilford," she cried, putting her hands out to me with an imploring gesture. "Go and rest, there's a dear, and carry out Doctor Britten's orders. You will soon be right again if you do. You've been puzzling your head too much over your figures, and the blow has affected you. Go and rest. But before you go I would ask you one favor."

"Well?" I inquired in a hard voice. She drew nearer to me, and with that detestable artificial coquetry lifted her face to mine that I might kiss her.

"No!" I cried roughly, for I was beside myself with anger. "Let me remain in peace. I don't want to meet

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a precious little life is lost after a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. George Howell, Sandy Beach, Que., says:—"My baby was suffering with colic, vomiting and diarrhoea, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared. I would advise all mothers to keep a box of Tablets always at hand." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SOLDEIRS UNEXPECTED ALLY.

How a Mohammedan came to the Rescue of a British Regiment.

Sir D. C. Drury Lowe, who recently died, a veteran of Crimea, the Mutiny, the Zulu and Egyptian wars, was one of the leaders of the forced march to Cairo, which made its way sixty-five miles across the desert and consummated the victory of Tel-el-Kebir. A curious incident is told of this campaign. The story illustrates the absolute and superstitious devotion of the Arabs to their religion. Arabi Pasha had concentrated his forces near the English camp. The British soldiers were a queer looking set in their rough, loose jackets, dusty and muddy, their growing beards, their dirty belts and helmets; but the strictest discipline was maintained. The men were steady, cheerful, patient to endure the scanty food, filthy water and the heat and dust.

A canal ran close to their line of entrenchments, from which they got their water. Arabi dammed this canal and cut a deep drain by which he intended to let out the water into the valley and so make it impossible for the British to get their supply.

A few days before the final battle the British engineers were astonished to find the water in the canal rising. The tendency before had been a rapid decrease from consumption and evaporation. As every one knew the canal was dammed, they supposed the only solution of the mystery was that the rising of the Nile had filled the canal above the level of the dam and that the water was pouring over it. The increase was availed of at once; the lock was opened and the level of the water raised.

The true solution of this increase of water never entered the European mind. Later it was discovered. Arabi Pasha had cut the dam. A dervish, or holy man, much venerated, had come to the camp. He had heard of the building of the dam and pronounced it contrary to the faith. He declared that although the British soldiers were infidel dogs they were still God's creatures and should not be made to suffer and that the divine blessing could be expected only if the water were set free.

Arabi was a devout Moslem, and he instantly complied with the dervish's decision.

Visitors to the great Tercentenary Celebration will find at the "Tented City" every convenience to be had at a good hotel, combined with the delight of sleeping under canvas.

On the top of the cliff—commanding a magnificent view of the St. Lawrence, with the Naval Review; of the Pageants on the Plains of Abraham, and of old Quebec—a city of tents is being erected to provide accommodation for thousands of guests.

Three huge Dining Tents will seat 1,500 at once, and, under the management of an efficient caterer, meals will be served here to guests at 50c each. In another tent meals will be served at 25c.

Five perfectly equipped Lavatory Tents, connected with the City mains, are provided—the one for Ladies in a separate part of the grounds.

Sleeping Tents are of three sizes.

Lots of accommodation in the "Tented City." Electric car line passes the main entrance; distance from Grand Stand five minutes walk. Plenty of police and fire protection. great value of the food and its cheapness, even when the price is high, is reason for giving the subject close attention.

Eggs at twenty-five cents a dozen are cheaper than meat, not, of course, as some suppose, that the total amount of nutrients obtained is equal, but because less money is needed to furnish the meal. That is to say, the experts figure that whereas one pound and a quarter of beefsteak, costing twenty-five cents, at twenty cents a pound, would be necessary to serve five grown persons, in many families five eggs, costing ten cents, at twenty-five cents a dozen, would serve the same number and satisfy them as well. If the appetites demand two eggs each, doubling the cost, it still is twenty per cent, less than the steak.

DON'T BOIL YOUR EGGS.

Illinois Experts have Better way of Cooking them.

The average housewife knows less about eggs than about any other article of food of animal origin. This information, with other glimmerings as to how to fry, poach or boil them, is the sum of knowledge possessed by seventy-five per cent. of the country's cooks. This is regrettable, because books have been written about eggs, and only recently Dr. C. H. Langworthy, Ph. D., of the Department of Agriculture, has prepared a valuable paper on the subject.

Two or three minutes, women and men cooks will tell you, is the time required to boil eggs. That's wrong, and the experts in the laboratory of the University of Illinois have proved it. There they put the egg into a pan of water that had boiled and then shut off the heat. The pan was closely covered and the egg was allowed to remain in the water six minutes. By that time it was soft boiled. Tests showed that when the egg was put into the water temperature fell from 185 degrees Fahrenheit to 170 degrees. If the egg remained in the water eight minutes it was medium cooked and the water temperature had fallen to 162 degrees. If more time be allowed the egg may be hard cooked.

The value of this process, more lengthy than the customary one, is found in the flavor imparted, or rather retained, in the egg, as compared with the egg that has received only a hasty dab into any water or coffee that chances to be hot at the moment.

Housewives ordinarily pass over the pages in good cook books that refer to eggs, and yet the many varied forms of preparation and the

It is forty years since the famous blind engineer of Belfast died in Ireland. The Belfast Natural History and Philosophical Society has now published a memorial paper on his life and remarkable achievements. Alexander Mitchell was 16 years old when he became blind. His life was shrouded in darkness for seventy-two years, but he was in active business till he was 82, and his influence still lives. His two greatest works were the discovery and application of a new principle in preparing the foundations for lighthouses and piers and his improvements in the screw propeller. He built many lighthouses, and long before his death he had the satisfaction of knowing that his inventions were conferring important benefits in India and North and South America as well as in Europe and that his improvements in steam propulsion were used on every sea.

There is no lack of illumination in the minds of such as these who can achieve the exceptional though from "wisdom at one entrance quite shut out."

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince's reply to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's address of welcome to Quebec on behalf of the Canadian people:—

"I am greatly touched by the loyal and sympathetic words of the address with which you, in the name of the people of Canada, welcome me on this occasion of my sixth visit to the Dominion. I am fully sensible of the honor and responsibility of my position as the representative of our Sovereign, who, ever mindful of the unswerving loyalty of his Canadian subjects, follows with affectionate interest everything which concerns the welfare and development of the Dominion. My privilege is, therefore, twofold, for I join with you, both as the representative of the King and on my own behalf, in celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of your famous city by Samuel de Champlain. I look forward with keen interest to the impressive ceremonies of the next few days, during which the past and present will appear before us upon a stage of unsurpassed natural beauty. And here in Quebec I recall with much pleasure the no uncertain proofs which I have received on my several visits to Canada of the loyalty of the King's French-Canadian subjects. Their proved fidelity in times of difficulty and danger, happily long past, is one of the greatest tributes to the political genius of England's rule, and the knowledge that they and their fellow-Canadians of British origin are working hand in hand in the upbuilding of the Dominion is a source of deep satisfaction to the King, as well as to all those who take part in British institutions. I cordially agree with you in the propriety of setting apart as a memorial for the present and future generations the battle ground of the Plains of Abraham, hallowed by the associations of past years, and I heartily congratulate all concerned in this noble undertaking upon the success which has attended their patriotic efforts.

"I much regret that my present visit cannot be extended beyond Quebec, and also that the Princess of Wales was unable to accompany me on this occasion. We both retain the happiest recollections of our stay in Canada seven years ago, and of the kind and affectionate welcome we experienced during that most interesting and enjoyable visit.

"I shall not fail to convey to my dear father, the King, who takes the deepest interest in this celebration, the gratifying expressions of your loyalty and attachment to his throne and person, of which his Majesty is well assured.

"Once more I thank you from my heart for your kindly greeting."

NOW IT WILL BE SIR JAMES.

Ontario's Premier Honored at Quebec City.

A despatch from Quebec says: On Thursday the visit of the Prince of Wales was signalized by the conferring of a batch of honors, and among the recipients was Hon. James Pliny Whitney, or, as he is now, Sir James Whitney. Equally honored is the Premier of Quebec and Mayor Graneau of Quebec, both of whom receive Knighthoods. Earl Grey's reward for the services he has rendered in connection with the celebrations and the promotion of the battlefields scheme is a Grand Cross of the Victorian Order, while Colonel Hanbury Williams, his aide-de-camp, is made a K.C.V.O. Three of the National Battlefields Commissioners, Sir George Drummond, Mr. B. E. Walker and Hon. Adelard Turgeon, receive the honor of C.V.O., which is also given to Mr. Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State, and General Otter. Colonel Percy Sherwood, Chief of the Dominion Police, and Colonel Roy are made members of the Victorian Order, and a C. M.G. is conferred on City Clerk Choumard of Quebec.

HAYES WINS MARATHON RACE

United States Man First, South African Second.

A despatch from London says: The great Marathon race, by far the most important event of the Olympic games, was won on Friday by Hayes of the United States. Longboat, to whom the Canadians had pinned their faith, gave up at the twentieth mile. Following is the result:—1. Hayes, United States, 2 hours 55 minutes 18 seconds. 2. Hefferon, South Africa, 2 hours 56 minutes 6 seconds. 3. Porshaw, United States, 2 hours 56 minutes 10 2-5 seconds. Welton of the United States finished fourth. Wood of Canada was fifth, Simpson of Canada sixth and Lawson of Canada seventh. Caffery of Canada was twelfth and Goldsboro seventeenth. The man to really reach the tape first was Dorando of Italy, and the Italian flag was raised to signalize his victory, but the Americans entered a protest, because Dorando, who dropped from exhaustion when 200 yards from the tape, had been assisted by some of the officials. The protest was allowed and Hayes, the second man, declared victor.

CROPS ARE FLOURISHING.

C.P.R. Reports All Indicate Bountiful Harvest.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Reports on the condition of the growing grain of the western Provinces were received at the office of the General Manager of the C.P.R. on Wednesday morning. A summary of the reports indicates that the general rains of last week, extending over the entire grain district, have been of great benefit to the crops. There are a few points in Manitoba and southern Alberta calling for more rain, but, generally speaking, all have received a fair supply of moisture. Hail is reported at a few points, but the damage is slight, and confined to small areas. Grain dealers interviewed on the exchange on Wednesday morning said that they expected the cutting of the crop to begin about the second week

Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, has consented to extend the Competition still further by arranging to have the five prize winners in each of the different Agricultural Societies competing enter into a Provincial contest at the Winter Fairs at Guelph and Ottawa. Each exhibitor will be required to forward two bushels of the grain with which he takes a prize in the Standing Field Crop Competition this year. The amounts offered in prizes at each of the above named winter fairs will be: 1st, $35; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $20; 4th, $10; 5th, $5. All Societies west of Toronto will compete at Guelph and those east of Toronto at Ottawa. Each exhibitor will send his grain by express C. O. D., addressed to the Superintendent of the Fair at Guelph or Ottawa and the transportation charges will be paid by the Department of Agriculture.

The grain winning the prizes at these Winter Fairs will become the property of the Department and will be used for experimental purposes. All grain exhibited other than that taking prizes will be sold by auction at 10 a.m. on the morning of the last day of the fair and the proceeds remitted by the Department to the owners.

An affidavit must be furnished by each exhibitor at the time of making entry certifying that all the grain exhibited by him was grown on the plot which was judged by

SPECTACULAR FIRE.

Dome of Kingston's Municipal Buildings Destroyed.

A despatch from Kingston says: On Friday afternoon Kingston was in danger of losing its fine city buildings by fire which broke out in the massive wooden dome at 3.30 o'clock. A plumber was at work soldering around the dials being placed in the tower clock. Sparks from the solder pot were blown by the wind into some sawdust and rotted wood, and immediately the flooring was in flames, which spread to the place occupied by the big clock. The city buildings hose in the tower had no effect on the blaze. In twenty minutes it burst through the dials of the dome. The height of 120 feet bothered the firemen, but finally from the east and west wings and the front of the buildings streams were played upon the burning dome, and in an hour the fire was under control.

PAGEANTS DAZZLE THE EYE

Too Much of Them to Take on at Once---Gorgeous-ly Planned --Superbly Executed.

A correspondent, describing the pageants at the Tercentenary at Quebec last week, has this to say:

Quebec's ten pageants are to be found between the Promenade and the Chateau. For diversity of costume, for wealth of detail, for real heart interest of the kind that grips the interest and holds it fast, the promenade is far ahead of the spectacle upon the Plains of Abraham. The pageant over, the quaintly costumed folk who form its multitude of entertainers are free to go where they will. Mingling with these are soldiers, sailors, and civilians, the former given to marching here and there in lines, singing and refusing to be taken seriously in any sense.

BEYOND DESCRIPTION.

But what of the pageant itself, the big spectacle on the Plains with five thousand taking part in it? As well endeavor to describe in a few lines as the two centuries and more of early history which it represents. From Jacques Cartier in 1533 to Montcalm and Wolfe in 1759 and 1760, the pageant is a blaze of glory, a stupendous whirl of color in motion and unexpressible blending of light and shade that is almost bewildering in its complicity. The pageant does not instruct.

THE TABLEAUX.

Taken tableaux by tableaux it might, Jacques Cartier, Champlain, the ursulines at Quebec, Dollard des Ormeaux at long Sault Laval, and Tracy, Frontenac, Montcalm, Wolfe, Murray. These are characters too great in the eye of history to scan in an afternoon with any inking of comprehension. One tableau gives food for thought, the eight suffice it.

COSTUMES MAGNIFICENT.

The costumes are all that has been said of them and more. To see the long procession of events is to whirl through the years on an express which travels faster than time. Events move with precision and despatch, the rattling of a few guns in the distance conveys in some mysterious way, the impression of the flight of time between one tableau and the next.

PICTURESQUE TROOPS.

Decade glides into decade gorgeously. Picturesque troops and treacherous savages mingle in the great natural stage where Canada's real heroes fought and died. The costuming is perfect, the blending of colors as superb, but the pageant is almost too sublime to grasp. To see it is to hurry through an art gallery with a train to catch. The scenes are of marvellous beauty, historically correct, wonderfully comprehensive, but they dazzle rather than illumine and that is the whole truth of it.

CATTLE MARKET.

Toronto, July 28.—Choice butcher cattle are wanted. Butchers seem to have enough supplies on hand for the present. A few fairly good exporters were in, but no very fancy stock.

There is a good export demand for sheep, which is sufficient to absorb all the large offerings. Lambs, however, are rather weak, owing to the large numbers now offering. Hogs are unchanged at $6.90 to $7, fed and watered, Toronto, but the market is weak. Calves were stronger on the light run.

DECREASE IN IMMIGRATION

Returns for June Show a Falling Off of 58 Per Cent.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The total immigration into Canada for the month of June was 5,637, as compared with 37,643 for the same month last year, a decrease of 22,006, or 58 per cent. The immigration decreased 46 per cent. for the first three months of this fiscal year. The total immigration for the six months of the present calendar year was 96,119, as compared with 169,419 for the same months of 1907, a decrease of 73,300, or 43 per cent. The decrease was via ocean ports. The immigration from the United States practically held its own, as the increase is one per cent.

supply of moisture. Hail is reported at a few points, but the damage is slight, and confined to small areas. Grain dealers interviewed on the exchange on Wednesday morning said that they expected the cutting of the crop to begin about the second week of August, which is some time earlier than last year.

FILLING UP THE WEST.

Fifty Thousand Families in Fifteen Years.

A despatch from Ottawa says: According to statistics compiled by the Census and Statistics Bureau, 50,324 families took up a corresponding number of farms in the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta during the past fifteen years. They increased the population of the Canadian West by 205,774 persons. From the United States there came 16,344 families, with 70,703 persons; from the British Islands 10,797, with 31,395 persons; from Austria-Hungary 10,650, with 52,639 persons; from Russia 5,018, with 24,594 persons; from Scandinavia 3,830, with 11,968 persons; from Germany and Holland 1,986, with 7,734 persons; from France and Belgium 1,131, with 4,487 persons; and from other countries 568, with 2,234 persons.

PLOT TO SLAY LEOPOLD II.

Anarchists Arrested in Brussels—Much Alarm for King's Safety.

A despatch from Brussels says: The Journal states that the Belgian authorities are greatly alarmed over a rumor of a plot to assassinate King Leopold. Several Anarchists have been arrested. The police have arrested a number of persons who are suspected of complicity in the scheme. A wholesale crusade against Anarchists and persons suspected of having relations with Anarchists has been started.

CONVICTED OF SEDITION.

Nationalist Leader, of Bombay, to Be Transported.

A despatch from Bombay says: Titak, the Nationalist leader, whose trial for sedition occupied several days, has been found guilty and has been sentenced to transportation for six years, and to pay a fine of 5,000 rupees. The charge was based on articles appearing in the Kesari, a Poona weekly newspaper, of which Titak was the editor, inciting the natives to rebellion and to use bombs.

ITALIAN MURDERED.

Furious Fight in the Colony at Sault Ste. Maria.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: As a result of a melee which took place among the Italians in their quarter of the town on Sunday night one man is dead, having been riddled with bullets, five penetrating his breast and one through his head. Another was severely clubbed and stabbed and no hopes are held for his recovery. Others were more or less injured by knives and clubs, which were used in the fight. Seven arrests have been made. The police think they have the murderers. Other arrests will follow.

HEALTH

PREVENTION OF MALARIA.

Since it has been proved by the most careful tests that malaria is spread from man to man only through the agency of mosquitoes of a special kind, the prevention of the disease is theoretically easy. One has only to keep the mosquitoes away or to keep away from the mosquitoes, and the trick is done.

It is a pity that it is not so easy as it sounds. In the tropics, in the Roman Campagna, and in other places where the pernicious form of malaria abounds, the precautions taken are most elaborate; but they may well be imitated wherever malaria exists, modified, perhaps, in some of the details so as to make them less burdensome, and consequently more likely to be followed.

In the first place, settlers in the tropics are warned to build their cabins or their houses as far away from the native settlements as possible, especially where there are many children. It is with malaria as with yellow fever, that the disease is generally kept going in a community by the children, who have it in mild, but nevertheless infectious form.

All the windows of the house should be screened with wire gauze—not removable, but nailed outside to the frames of the windows. The doors should be doubly guarded by a vestibule with a screen door at each end. As an additional precaution, the beds are provided with gauze mosquito bars closed all round, and to be entered only by lifting one side for a moment. If one goes out after sundown—the malaria mosquito is an evening and night flier—one should wear a gauze hood, falling from the brim of the hat over the shoulders, gauntlet gloves coming over the coat-sleeves, and leggings.

The grounds surrounding the house should be well drained, the grass kept short, and all puddles swept away if small, or oiled if large. The water tanks should be covered with a wire netting, and particular care should be taken to see that there are not old tomato cans or broken bottles round, for these make excellent receptacles for little accumulations of water, in which the malarial mosquito loves to lay her eggs.

In short, in the war against mosquitoes it must be remembered that stagnant water is the danger point always, as that is what the mosquito needs for breeding purposes. It should never be allowed to gather round the premises in quantities, however small. This is simply a matter of ordinary intelligent care. If it is already there in larger quantities, a coat of kerosene will make it noxious to the mosquito larvae.—Youth's Companion.

THE KING TO THE PEOPLE

Cablegram Despatch to the King From Quebec and His Reply.

"The people of Canada, assembled to celebrate the Tercentenary of the foundation of Quebec, present their humble duty to your Majesty, and desire to thank your Majesty for the honor done them by the presence here of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. They see in this gracious act a fresh proof of the interest which your Majesty has ever manifested towards your Majesty's Canadian subjects, who, on this great and historic occasion hasten to renew the expression of their unalterable devotion to your Majesty's throne and person."

The following reply was received from the King:

"Please convey to Mayor and citizens of Quebec my congratulations and good wishes on the joyous celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the foundation of their city by Samuel de Champlain. I am much gratified to learn of their cordial reception of the Prince of Wales, whom I have sent to represent me on this great occasion. I received with pleasure the renewed assurances of loyalty on the part of my Canadian subjects, in whose welfare I am deeply interested, and to whom I wish an ever-increasing measure of progress and prosperity."

CHIT-CHAT.

White embroidered linen frocks for very young girls are always beautiful and always appropriate, but the average woman regards them as outside her means. A very good plan is to buy an embroidered centerpiece, not of the heavy white linen variety, but the kind known as Japanese embroidery, covered with a design including baskets or bouquets of flowers.

Having acquired this, some material must be purchased to match, as nearly as possible, the foundation of the centerpiece, and a few yards of valenciennes insertion or French beading. The front of the waist and skirt may then be cut from the centerpiece, choosing, as near as possible, a complete portion of the design, and these may be set into the material with a band of insertion or beading. Whatever is left of the centerpiece may be used to trim the sleeves, which are finished with the insertion or beading, and a very handsome, hand-embroidered gown is made at little cost and almost no trouble.

The material used on each side of the design may be finely tucked and the model for the dress may be empire or plain, to suit the taste of the mother. It is better, though, to arrange for a break in the waistline, for the two designs will be detached in any case. A pretty belt to wear with this frock is a boned girdle of Dresden ribbon or of the softest ivory radium silk.

As both dresses described above are of such sheer materials, a white taffeta slip should be worn under them, but if this is not procurable, the usual fluffy skirts will look very well with the white embroidered frock; while for the scrim dress slip made of flowered dimity and finished in many ruffles would be charming.

Intimate your cat, ma'am, and take a sun bath these spring mornings if you want to get rid of your nerves," said a certain well known specialist to one of his patients recently. "See how lazy and happy pussy looks as he stretches his body and blinks his eyes in the morning sun. If cats had nerve diseases this would be the best thing in the world to cure them.

"Every sanitarium has its sun room now, but women ought not to wait till they have reached the sanitarium stage of breaking down before they indulge in anything as cheap as a sun bath. Any woman who has a south window and an easy chair can have a sun bath every morning if she only determines to take it, if the potatoes have to be peeled or the stockings darned, they can be done during the sun bath, but the best way of all is to take it just as the cat does, in the laziest fashion possible. Run the shade way up to the sash, move your chair within range of the sunlight and luxuriate for half an hour. It's better than gallons of medicines, and may save hours and hours of dullness or staying in bed later on.

"Indian women have the most placid nerves of any race of people in the world, probably, and doctors are beginning to think it is because they sit in the sun so much. An Indian woman is as fond of the sun outside her wigwam as the cat is of his favorite spot. They sit in it and vegetate for hours at a time, scarcely winking the eyes.

"There's no danger of women vegetating these days, so it's quite safe to advise one to sit in the sun as much as she can. It's good for her, anyway, but especially so if she's nervous."

HOG INDUSTRY DOES NOT PAY

Farmers in the Province of Ontario Are Giving Up Raising Them.

A despatch from Ottawa says: In the first issue of the Census and Statistics Monthly, published by the Department of Agriculture, a report is given on the crops and live stock of Ontario for the month ending June 30, as follows:—

Wheat—Decreased acreage of 8,267, the total area being 812,571 acres. In general looks promising, headed out well, and average yield of 25 bushels per acre anticipated. Spring wheat is backward.

The percentage of standard condition for wheat is 81.

Oats—Acreage estimated at 3,108,460, an increase of 175,951 acres. In spite of late sowing, the crop appears to be doing well, and may yield from 35 to 40 bushels per acre.

Barley—Acreage of 743,884, a decrease of 23,007. Where it was possible to get this crop in early the prospects are fairly good, but the late-sown barley is reported as poor and thin.

Hay and clover seem to be hardly so good as last year. A great deal of clover was Winter-killed.

All descriptions of live stock increased considerably in number with the exception of swine, which show a decrease.

Everywhere farmers are reported as giving up the hog industry which, it is stated, is at present ceasing to pay, owing to the high prices of feeding material, particularly of grain, and the low price ruling for pork.

A POLICEMAN MURDERED

Officer McCormack Shot by Unknown Man at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: At Niagara Falls, N. Y., on Wednesday morning about 1 o'clock Officers Magner and McCormick of the police force were shot at and wounded by an unknown man. Officer McCormick has since died from his injuries, and Magner is seriously hurt. The two officers received information that a man had been seen flourishing a revolver on Main street, and they set out together to trace him. Opposite the International Hotel they met a man answering to the description given them, and one of the officers asked him what he had in his pocket. "I'll tell you in a minute," he replied, and immediately pulled from his pocket a revolver and fired, fatally wounding McCormick, the bullet severing the artery in his right arm, and so severely injuring Magner in the right leg. The wounded officers were conveyed to the hospital, where McCormick shortly after expired. The noise of the shots brought a number of men to the spot, and the assailant escaped into the Reservation.

Another man, James Henry, bartender, was shot and probably fatally wounded on Wednesday morning in Niagara Falls, N. Y., by an unknown Italian. It is said the Italian tendered a bad coin for refreshment. Henry refused it and the Italian shot him, the bullet lodging in his left lung. The doctors say that the wounded man may not live.

POISON POURED IN THROAT

Oxford County Farm Hand the Victim of a Remarkable Accident.

A despatch from Ingersoll, Ont., says: A peculiar poisoning case, which nearly resulted fatally, is reported from Falden's Corners. While putting Paris green on potatoes with a hand sprayer, on Saturday afternoon, Bert Butterworth, a young man employed by Mr. Bradsage, accidentally swallowed a quantity of the deadly mixture.

The accident happened when Butterworth inserted a nail in the hose of the sprayer, which had become clogged. Forced by a heavy pressure, the liquid, suddenly freed, was driven into the young man's face as soon as the nail was inserted. He was not aware at the time that he had swallowed any of the mixture, but half an hour later he became violently ill, and an Ingersoll physician was summoned. Butterworth was in a very serious condition, and his life was only saved through the use of prompt remedies. It was then discovered that he had swallowed a large quantity of the poison, which had evidently been driven down his throat by the force of the sprayer.

Friday afternoon last the city buildings, Kingston, was the scene of a disastrous fire. The fire is supposed to have originated from a soldiering pot, which was being used in connection with the placing in of two new dials in the cupola. With the cupola gone and the dome partly burned away, the once noble pile of masonry presents a sorry spectacle. The loss to the building and contents is placed between $10,000 and $15,000. The insurance on the building and contents is $22,500.

Training Counts.

A course at the Frontenac Business College, Kingston, will qualify you to take up a more congenial line of work at a much higher salary. One young man who graduated last term has just accepted a situation at $800 a year. Training counts, and your success depends largely on your choice of a school. Send us the names of three young people who would appreciate our catalog, and we will send you free a coupon worth $10 on payment of any of our courses. Write at once as the offer is only good for the first fifty. T. N. Stockdale, Principal.

A Steamboat Race.

The Belleville Chronicle of July 23rd, says: "All the moonlight passengers of the steamers Aletha and Brockville who were interested in the comparative speed of the two steamers were permitted to enjoy all the excitement of a steamboat race last night. "Both boats whistled to leave here at the same instant, but the Aletha turned around and got away first, securing a lead which she maintained till she arrived at 12 o'clock Point. "On the return the Brockville left first closely followed by the Aletha, and although both boats burned an incredible amount of coal, the Brockville could not increase her lead nor could the Aletha shorten it. "There is one pleasing circumstance, namely, that, although there is a keen rivalry between the boats, it is a healthy rivalry. There was no hitching or crowding. Capt. Christie allowed the Aletha to gain a safe distance leaving Belleville, and Capt. Roys did not leave the Point until the Brockville was a safe distance ahead of his boat.

 months. Deceased was about seventy-five years of age and leaves a widow but no family. The funeral took place on Monday morning to the Western Cemetery.

Charles B. Van Winkel, passed peacefully away on Saturday morning at the residence of his son, Frank Van Winkel, 177 Clergy street, Kingston. The deceased had been ailing for three years and death came as a welcome release after so long a time of suffering. The late Mr. Van Winkel was born in Ernestown, twenty-seven years ago, and spent nearly all his life there, going to stay with his son two years ago. Deceased was a carpenter by trade and well known in his native township. He had a host of friends. Besides his wife, one son,
 Frank, Kingston, and one brother,
 William, Toronto are left to mourn.

 the work has been somewhat delayed.
 The machinery in the gas works has been thoroughly overhauled and put in first class condition, and when the new gas machine is installed, the plant will be up-to-date in every particular, and the capacity of the works increased one third.

Passed Peacefully Away.

Mrs. Thos. Jamieson, beloved wife of Mr. Thomas Jamieson, passed peacefully away on Sunday morning, after an illness of several months. Deceased whose maiden name was Jane Steacy, was born near Perth, Ont. and came to Napanee with her husband about thirty years ago. Mrs. Jamieson was a devout christian lady, a consistent member of the Methodist church and endeared to her many friends by many acts of kindness. Deceased was aged 72 years and three days. The sympathy of a host of friends goes out to the bereaved family in his loss. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, services being held in Trinity Church and the remains taken to Riverside Cemetery for interment.

Commited Suicide

On Wednesday morning Mr. Calvin
 Pine, a old man, and somewhat of a character around town was found hanging to a nail in his room in the white block, west of A. G. Smith's fruit store. A child who called with some milk for Mr. Pine could not get in and on looking through the window saw him hanging. Chief Gorman was notified, broke open the door, and found the unfortunate man hanging from a nail by a rope, with his feet a few inches from the floor. He had exactly placed the rope around his neck while standing on a small box found beside him, and stepped off the box. Chief Gorman cut the rope and notified the coroner who deemed an inquest unnecessary. Deceased was 76 years of age and leaves one son.

An Opportunity

On Thursday, August 6th, the Trinity Church Third Annual Excursion to Kingston, 1000 Island Park will take place. The excursion train will leave Napanee station at 7:43 in the morning, and run through to Kingston wharf without change. Here the party will transfer to the steamer "Albion" which has been specially chartered for the day, and will carry the excursion to the 1000 Island Park, where about two hours will be allowed for dinner. Leaving at 1 p. m. the boat will then take that most romantic sail through the Thousand Islands which leads through intricate channels, among emerald isles dotted with picturesque summer homes, passing Alexandria Bay and returning to Kingston by way of the Canadian Channel which for beauty of natural scenery is not equalled in America. The trip will be timed so as to reach Kingston in time to make connection with the regular evening train arriving in Napanee at 8:11. Round trip from Napanee $1.00, children half fare. Napanee to Kingston and return, free.

MATRIMONIAL.

Black, McCallum.
A quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McCabe, South Napanee, on Tuesday evening, when their only daughter, Miss Bertha, was united in marriage to Mr. Ryne M. Black, one of the popular employees of the Robinson Co. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Emley at 9 o'clock p. m. in the presence of a few invited guests and relatives of the contracting parties. Bride and groom were unattended. The wedding march was played by Miss Edna Black, sister of the groom. After the ceremony a dainty lunch was served and a few hours spent in happy intercom before the departure of the wedding party. The home was prettily decorated with evergreens, potted plants and water lilies. The bride's costume was of gray silk, bolero and her travelling dress of brown chiffon broadcloth. The groom's present to his bride was a pearl earring and to the organist a black silk umbrella. The large number of handsome and useful wedding gifts amply testifies to the popularity of the young couple among their friends. Among the presents might be mentioned the large lamp and stand from Mr. Black's fellow employees of The Robinson Co., a handsome velvet ring from the Robinson Co., and a beautiful silver service, suitably engraved from the members of the choir and friends of the Western Methodist church, of which the bride has been organist for some time. The happy couple left on the midnight train for a short wedding tour to Toronto and Niagara.

A Girl After His Own Heart.

A Scotchman, wishing to know his fate at once, telegraphed a proposal of marriage to the lady of his choice. After spending the entire day at the telegraph office he was finally rewarded late in the evening by an affirmative answer.

"If I were you," suggested the operator when he delivered the message, "I'd think twice before I'd marry a girl that kept me waiting all day for any answer."

"Na, na," retorted the Scot. "The lass who waits for the night rates is the lass for me."
